Articulus 3us
de Appetitu materiae, ejusque generabilitate et incorruptibilitate.

Notandum 1o aliud appetitum elicitum, aliud innatum. elicitus est actus potentiae appetitivae seu sensitivae seu rationalis, quo quis fertur in bonum cognitum, per quem appetitum sensitivum exemplum tibi in cane famelico ad panem et corvo sitiente ad aquam. appetitus innatus vero non est actus, sed quaedam inclinatio ab Auctore naturae unicuique indita ad bonum sibi proprium et conveniens: qualis est inclinatio lapidis deorsum, ignis sursum. N. 46us Notandum appetitus aliquis desiderij circa rem absentem, et complacentiae circa rem praesentem, et obtentam.

Notandum 2o omnes formas substantiales in hoc convenire, quod unaquaeque sit actus, vel determinatio, et in hoc sensu generico una non est magis talis quam altera, N. 47us nullaque in sua essentia excedit aliam, 2do quod plures et plures gradus metaphysicos eosdem in arbore Porphyriana expressos participent. Notatque quod essentia de natura sublunari non coelesti, atque quae formas modo unam habet, adeoque satiatur plene ipsa, ut aliam non appetat, ita de appetitu innato non elicito, qui certe non datur in materia, cum non detur cognitio; qui appetitus innatus in bonum absens dicitur appetitus desiderij, non proprie sed improprie, prout et consideratum et complacentiae sit actus potentiae appetitivae: Dicitur quod, an materia prima formas omnes appetat, ubi bene distinguendum est inter appetitum generi- cum et specificum, appetitus genericus competit materiae primae considerata prout est pura potentia et actualitate substantiali et metaphysica destituta; appetitus specificus convenit materiae prout parti constitutae uni cum parte constituta coniungi propositum. quod probatur

Probo 1o Materia prima omnes formas aequaliter appetit appetitu generico, et quidem omnes modo dictas appetitu desiderij, possessas et habitas appetitu complacentiae. quoad primam probatur. et ideo

Ergo quod 1um probatur. Materia prima fertur in bonum sibi proportionatum et conveniens; atqui omnes formae sunt perfectae quam imperfectiore, scilicet bonum [illegible] materiae prima, N. 48us et in prima tantum formae est bonum proportionatum materiae primae considerata; quod et actus primus, datque primum complementum; atqui omnes formae aequaliter sunt actus primus et determinativum: ergo omnes formae sunt perfectae quam imperfectiore, sunt bonum proportionatum materiae primae, adeoque aequaliter fertur in omnes formas.
