Handwritten musical notation on aged, stained paper. The page features several staves of music with square neumes and Latin text in Gothic script. The text is partially obscured by ink bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. A large red initial 'L' is visible in the lower-left quadrant, and a blue initial 'L' is at the bottom center. The paper shows significant wear, including holes and discoloration.
