Fragment of a medieval manuscript page with Latin text and red initials.

Fragment of a medieval manuscript page, likely a liturgical or legal text, written in Latin. The text is heavily faded and partially obscured by damage to the parchment. Several large red initials are visible, including "C", "D", "I", and "F". The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be "Populus", "Santus", "C", "D", "I", "F", "C", "I", "C". The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear, including a large tear at the top and a smaller tear at the bottom.

Fragment of a medieval manuscript page, likely a calendar or liturgical book, showing Latin text in Gothic script with red initials and rubrics. The text is heavily faded and obscured by dark stains and physical damage to the parchment.

Visible red initials and rubrics include:

- Q (Quintus)
- C (C)
- D (D)

The page is heavily stained and damaged, particularly in the center and lower half, where the text is almost entirely illegible due to dark, irregular marks. The parchment is aged and yellowed, with some physical wear and tear at the top edge.

Fragment of a parchment document with red ink markings and faint traces of text. The parchment is heavily stained and damaged, with a large tear near the top center. The text is mostly illegible due to fading and damage.

Visible red ink markings include:

- A horizontal line near the top edge.
- A small mark resembling "170" on the right side.
- A large, bold red letter "I" in the center.
- A red word or phrase, possibly "Abt", on the left side.
- A red mark resembling "170" in the lower right quadrant.
- A red mark resembling "170" near the bottom edge.

Faint traces of text are visible throughout the fragment, but they are mostly illegible due to fading and damage.
