Badische Landesbibliothek Karlsruhe

Digitale Sammlung der Badischen Landesbibliothek Karlsruhe

A Treatise of Specters

Bromhall, Thomas [S.I.], 1658

Of the Miracles of Devils, or of divers deceits and mocks of evil Daemons, to strengthen the Idolatry of the Gentiles

urn:nbn:de:bsz:31-96270

Of Miracles of Devils, or of divers deceits and mocks of evil Dæmons, to strengthen the Idolatry of the Gentiles.

He power of Vesta warranted (the fire being gone out) a woman Schollar of the Virgin Emilia, to be fafe from all blame, who worthipping, when she had laid a Cyprus garment (the which she had a very good one) on the hearth, the fire suddenly shone out. Valerius, book 1. chap. 1.

They say, *Eneas to have placed houshold-gods brought from Troy, at Lavinium; thence being brought over to Alba, by his son Ascanius, the which he had built, to have returned again to the ancient Chappel: and because that might be thought to be done by man's hand, being brought back again to Alba, to have signified his will by another passage. Valer. Max. book 1. chap. 8.

Worshipped Is for her Miracles: for this goddes healed the discases of those that were not well in health, in their sleep; and they who did obey her counsel, were cured beyond thought. Also those that were weak in their sight, or in other part of the body, humbly intreating the vertue of the goddes, were restored unto their former health. Diodore Siculus, book 1. chap. 2. of Ancient Things.

In the Temple of Afculapius among the Epidaurians, they who came to pray to the god, they sleep; and in their sleep, do learn the reason of recovering health. And then they put squares in the Temple, containing the names of those that were cured, and the manner of curing. Pausanias, in his Corinthian affairs. There was the same custome among the Romans, even to the Times of the Antonines, that which we may understand from a Marble Table of Rome found in the Temple of Asculapius in the Island Tiberia, and by the Mapheans kept even to this day, in which these words are read, rendred out of Greek in the Latine speech, as witnesseth fer. Mercurial, a most Learned Physitian, in his first book of exercise. In these dayes the Oracle told Caius, a certain blind man, that he should come to the holy Altar, and should bend his knees; he should come from the right part to the lest, and should place his five fin put it upon fent, and goor Emper fulran von should car well, and, people; t dier, that mingling I should use the fide, at fhould com together wi he was in h gave thank openly gav

Aarhan unto to periorm had scarce if the Countr but it came in 3, speech freem er on ther anto the prayed the Romans, an gods inhab the was with the was wit

A Lexas Tyre, and of flood there ders. He levat Relig km, Neptus extined ev

his five fingers upon the Altar, and should life up his hand, and put it upon his own eyes, and he law well, the people being preient, and giving thanks because great miracles were done under our Emperour Astonine. The god answered by the Oracle unto Julian vomitting up bloud, being despaired of by all men, that he thould come, and thould take from the Altar Pine-kernells, and should ear them together with honey for three dayes; and he was well, and, being alive, openly gave thanks in the presence of the people; the god gave an Oracle unto Voleriss Aper a blind Souldier, that he should come, and take the bloud of a white Cock, mingling honey withir, and should make a washing water, and should use it three dayes upon his eyes, and he saw and came, and openly gave thanks to God. Lucism being troubled with a pain of the fide, and despaired of by all men, the god gave an Oracle, He should come, and take ashes from the Altar, and should mingle it together with a pretious Pearl, and should lay it upon his side, and he was in health, and openly gave thanks to God: and the people gave thanks together with him.

A Ristides a Rhetorician of Smyrna, when as an Earthquake was at hand, was commanded by Asculapius to go a little before, unto the antient house, and on the top of the little hill Atys to perform holy things, and to build Altars; the which when he had scarce finished, the Earthquake arising, so shook indeed all the Countrey lying between, that it lest no house to refort unto, but it came not to Atys, nor touched any thing beyond it. Stobaus, in 3. speech.

The Veians being vanquished and plundered by Camillus, it seemed meet, to carry away the Ensign that was in Junoes Tower unto Rome, as he had vowed. Artificers being called together unto that thing, Camillus performed holy things, and having prayed the goddesse, that she would embrace the endeavour of the Romans, and being willing, that she go with her favours unto the gods inhabiting Rome: they say, the Ensign spake with a low voice, she was willing, and to agree by nodding. Livy delivereth, that while he prayed, Camillus to have handled the goddesse, and invited her, thereupon some of the standers by, to have answered, she was willing, and to agree and follow willingly. Plutarch. in Camillus.

A Lexander the Great making a Bulwark in the Sea to vanquish Tyre, suddenly a VVhale of incredible bignesse, swam to it and one part of his body being bended on the bulwark, he stood there a long time, with the great affrightment of all beholders. He again swam out, at last into the Sea. Hence a very great Religion or superstition possessed both, thinking that to betoken, Neptune would be a helper to the Macedonians, his mind being inclined even unto that which they desired. One told that such a a nd

US.

16566 decents

mothen

ne out) a

e from all

a Cyprus

) on the

ught hop

los, bybs

again in hight to he

have lie

29.8.

anciently

caled the

rp; 250

hit. Allo

red more

Auctor

ney who

do lears

es in the

and the

of the

e Table

Tibeth

words mellen

feet.

d man,

knees; place kind of fight appeared to him in the City, as though Apillo had faid, The City of Tyre should be forfaken by them. That thing when the common people thought it was feigned by that man in favour of Alexander, and now tome young ones would from him, he being withdrawn by the Magistrates out of the midst of them, fled into the Temple of Hercules, and so by the safeguard of the god whom he had implored, he was freed from punishment at hand. But the Tyrians in nothing more. They worth ipped him with much Superstition, who linked Apollo's Statue and Image with golden chains, and fo by that means they supposed him to be so fettered, that he could no more depart from their City; but for all that, their City was taken, and Alexander took off the golden chains and tetters from Apollo, with which the Tyrians had linked him, and commanded, that he should be called Philalexander; and so he finished that magnificent sacrifice unto Hercules. Diodorus, lib. 17-

Phillippides the Athenian, being sent Embassadour and Legate to Lacedemonia, about the invation and breaking in of the Persians into Greece, returning home again much reprehended the delayes and stay of the Lacedemonians, who would not bring out their Army before the full Moon, and meeting Pan, or the god Pan, in the Parthian Grove, who promised that he would ay the Athenians in the sight at Marathon, which was to be a while after. And so from this sprung the honours that the Athenians vouchsafed to the god, or gods messenger. Pausanias, lib. 1.

TN the Mithridatick Warr, when Mithridates besieged and ho-L vered over Cyzicum with the wings of his Army, the gods seemed to favour the Cyzenians, and to approve of their fortitude, and to excite it by some perspicuous and transparent signs and tokens at fundry times, as well as at Proferpina's feast then instant. When they wanted a black Ox to facrifice, they brought one made of breadcorn artificially made in paste, to the Altar; but the holy or confecrated Cow which was at feeding, afterwards to be facrificed to that Goddess, was at pasture over Sca with the rest of the flock of the Cyzenians; in that same day leaving the rest of the flock and herd, swam over alone to the Town, and willingly offered it felf to be sacrificed; moreover, their goddess appeared in a dream unto Aristagoras the publick School-master; Truly, faith she, here I am, and I drive and force the Arican Fidler or Musician into the Trumpeter of Pontus; do thou therefore command thy Citizens to be of good chear. The Cyzenians marvelled much at this speech; and as foon as it was break of day, and that the bright Luciferian Star, Phæbus's harbinger, did periwigg the horizon with his filver'd locks, the Sea began to boyl, as though a huge wind had agitated and stirr'd it, the quaverings, machines, and engines of the King's wall, and the famous (yea supererogating works) of the Thessalian Nicomedes, with their great noise and crack did prophesie and foretell w

wind did

bits, and their sky-

That call

peared in part of h

that the la

gave over

THE I

when

Bacchus w

Lempleto

T is rep

gians we fire fiream

dent light

mand, Th

when the

the gods v

IN abl

Pompey

ten by gre

animage

its back to

of its own

714, 23d is very lame

though d

apont the

famas's In

MA

the imagi

in the day

crimion a

and Temp

den, their help foretell what would come to pass; afterwards a very stormy South-wind did rise, which in a semi-moments space did so passe and shoulder-shake a woodden Tower of the heighth of a hundred cubits, and other machinaments and fortifications, that it levelled their sky-towring tops with the ground. But some relate it thus; That chinerva was seen in Visions to very many, to whom she appeared in their dreams, sweat trickling down her, and shewed part of her embroidered garment or veil which was rent, and that she said, She was even now come from ayding the Cyzenians. But Mithridates being almost samished, (although not in Hungaria) gave over the siege, and returned into Bythinia, Lucullus sollowing him. Plutarchus.

The Batians being enflaved and captivated by the Thracians, when they plumed their feet, and flew into the Trophonian den, it was told them in a Dream, That Bacchus was to be their helper; they fell upon the Thracians being drunk, (having Bacchus with them also) they redeemed one another, and built a Temple to Bacchus their redeemer; as Heraeldus Ponticus writes.

IT is reported, That Cleomenus, King of the Spartans, after the Argians were vanquished, sacrificing in Juno's Temple, a stame of fire streamed out of the breasts of the Image; which was an evident sign that Argos was not to be conquered by assault; for if the stame had issued out of the head of the image, it would have intimated, That he should win and take the City from the Tower; but when the lightning sprung out of her breasts, then all was done that the gods would have done. Herodotus, lib. 6.

IN a black forrowful conflict and battel at Pharfalia, in which Pompey was overcome by Cafar, which was foreshewed and written by great and wonderful signs and wonders, in Elide, there was an image of Victory which stood in Minerva's Temple, which had its back to the gate, and in that same day that the battel was sought, of its own accord it turned towards the door. At Antiochus in Syria, and in a Town by the red-Sea called Ptolemais, twice in that very same day there was such a noise heard about that City, as though there were a great mutiny and murmuring of Souldiers about the walls, and there was the noise of a Drum heard in pergamus's Temple, Valerius, lib. 1. cap. 6.

When Artila, the King of the Hunni, made an attempt about the intrenching upon the borders of the Roman Empire, the images of their gods was not onely feen in the night, but also in the day time to command every one to pray for himself, and that crimson and bloody drops came from Heaven, and two headed monstrous Infants were born, and many of their consecrated houses and Temples were struck with lightning, and a voice was oft heard,

IQ.

IF.

12.

12

Caud

Ils,

Aprillo had

Toat thing

that man in

Hone him,

dit of them,

rd of the god

ne at hand

n with piece

with golden

to fettered

for all that

n chains and

d him, and

and to be

Diodorus ,

t and Legat

n of the landed the de-

ing out the

god Pas, s he Athenial

ter, Andi

lafed to the gods feemed

nde, and H

d tokens it

When they

et bread-

oly or con-

e factificed

of the flock

of flock and

red is felt to

dream unto

the Trus-

ns to bed

erch; and

ferian State

his film's

ad agricultu

the Fight phefic and function

Cave tibi Italia, O Italy, take heed to thy felf. Bonfinius, lib. 3. De-cad. 1.

A Little before the destruction and demolishment of Troy, the fire in Minerva's Temple did spare, to burn the sacrifices that were laid upon the Altars; the common people being much troubled at this thing, flocked together to Apollo's Temple to the Altar there, and laying the parts of the intrails upon it, and fire being put to that, on a suddain all things began to be disturbed, fell to the ground; by which Spectacle all the people being enter'd in, much afraid and dismayed, incontinently there came an Eagle with a huge noise, and snatched away apart of the intrails, and carried them to the Grecian ships. Dist. lib. 5.

15.

16.

Afar Augustus in one part of the Capitol, erected a Temple to thundring Jove, which he had vowed in the Cambrick War, and did frequent this dedicated place daily, and he thought he saw in his Dream, Jupiter complain, that he had taken away his worshippers; and that he answered, that there was the Thunderer set for his Porter; And by and by, he decked and encompassed the top of the dedicated place with little bells, which then in a manner did hang and were pendant upon the gates and doors.

Onaras Annalium, tom. 3. relates, That under Anastasius the Manichean Emperour, a Magitian, a most wicked man, that had let up a brazen Image to the Goddels Fortune, in the shape of a Countrey woman, whose feet being brass, stood in a ship which was of the same mertal, in the City of Constantinople; which aforesaid ship was either caten away by hungry time, or broken by some other secret means, so that some fragments were taken away from it. And for this cause, ladened ships could not arrive any more at Byzantium; but whenfoever they approached near to it, they were driven back again by the violence of the winds, and unless they had brought their bagg and baggage in long Vessels or Ships rowed with Oars, perhaps the people might have been famished; which thing continuing for a good while, at last the Magistrates took care of the business, and the cause of this dysaster, they enquired of a Magician, a notable diviner, and so, that the broken pieces and fragments of that brazen Ship being diligently fought up, and gimmer'd and set in their proper places, then the Sea or Harbour was filled with voyage, navigation, and little thips; but as foon as they knew certainly the obstacle, at the last, the fragments were diflocated; and whatfoever ships were to arrive there, by the strength of the winds, were cast and driven back; and the thing being discovered, the Ship was renewed and made up again with great care and pains:

There

THere

Las, W

did attems

of their ma

and as he v

that wour

Come la

Dofan E

nifieth bot

his Dialog

Priefts, wi Egg of a C

in a certain

place, and

and when i

about to sh

uting form

on Apollo a

tunate, an

ter-pot into the water,

pany being

all into a M

of agreet b

and at felt

incula dec

alterward

his badge

bit Dercile

N the y

THE MAX

concertati

and comm

andthath

motherin

claring Ju

weakneffe

fell and pe

the Senan

he recover

lere the S

those Ctro forewas o from the (

chewing

237

Here were in a Tower in Athens Olive-trees, dedicated to Pallas, which were called Moria Halirhotius the son of Neptune, did attempt to cut them down with an Axe, because, by reason of their making and production, he was overcome by Minerva and as he was a hewing of them, struck himself by the axe and by that wound he perished. Caliu, lib. 12, cap. 20.

17.

COme say that Asculapius was not born of the Nymph Coronis but Dof an Egg of a little Crow, because the Greek word suppose signifieth both a little Crow, and also a Nymph so called, as Lucian m his Dialogue, de falso vate affirms. It is reported of the Antient Priests, who included and put a very little Serpent into a wind-Egg of a Crow, and studiously anointed it with wax, and hid it in a certain myery, and by and by an Altar was erected in that place, and he called the people together to a Sermon, or Oration, and when he had declared openly before them all, that he was about to shew himself to be a god. After the Oration was ended using some unknown uncouth words, he invocated and called upon Apollo and Asculapius, that they would be propitious and fortunate, and draw near to that City. Afterwards dipping a water-pot into a deep place, to fetch up some water, he brought up the water, together with that Egg, which he broke, a great company being by, and finding in it a young Serpent, he brought them all into a wonderfull admiration, but afterwards shewing a Serpent of a great bignesse in a gloomy place, a few dayes being spent, moving it felf artificially, he said that it was fo appointed, that he should declare that the god Asculapius was the son of Apollo. And afterwards Serpents were committed to his tutorage and care, and his badge or arms was a staff linked about with a Scrpent. bit Dercilus Natalis Comes Mythol. lib. 4. cap. 11.

18.

N the year 474, after the building of Rome, there was one Atronim Maximu, that led through the Circle or Theatre, his fervant that was fore beaten, tyed and chained to a Gibber before the concertation of the spectators, for this cause Jupiter was angry and commanded one Annius that he should tell the Senate of this, and that he was not pleased with a fast so full of cruelty; and he smothering this, his fon dyed suddenly, and for unverling and declaring Jupiters counsell, the second time, was cured of a great weaknesse that tainted and debilitated him; fo at last by the countell and perswafion of his friends, he was carried in his couch to the Senate, and when he had scarce finished his declaration he recovered his health, and went out of the Court on his feet, therefore the Senate did confult, and also by the Mavian Law that those Circean dayes were to be added to pacify Jupiter, and therefore was called Lustrarius, not from the Gibbet as some conceive from the Greek words 200 18 sauge, but from the redintegration and tenewing and making up of the breach, as Varro thinks, quia in-LI (taurare 19.

Baden-Württemberg

ils,

1, lib. 3. De.

of Troy, the

being much

mple to the

be diffur-

people being

nere came as the intrails.

da Temple

mbrick Was thought he

en away his

ne Thunder

compaffedue

n in a manac

Amaltalism to

ed man, the

the thaped

thip which

opies which

or broken by

TAKER BALL

arrive and

ids, and us

Vellels a ve been to

last the Mi-

yfaster,che

the broken

the Sea of

thips ; but the full

k; and the

to up again

Ture

20.

Staurare, he saith, is instar novare. Macrobius, lib. 1. Saturnal.

He Argonautes report that going out of Sigea, they were toffed and tumbled with a cruel Tempest, and allmost all of them in such a great danger despairing, they by their prayers called upon Orpheus, together with the Samothracian Deities, that they would deliver them from this eminent danger. When the Myrice were in the belly of all the danger, expecting no good iffue, unleffe they were brought forth of it, a two-fold light of Castor and Pollux thined about their heads (as it is faid) and not long after the Sea began to be more calme, and for this cause the Divinity of these two young men was esteemed very highly of; and those subitaneous Caftorean fires that blazed in the Sca, were called Gemini, and they glittered like as they were the pictures and effigies of Joves twyforked lightning which sometimes did fit upon the point of the hairs of the Souldiers, that were in their night watches, at other times upon the fore-Masts of Ships, and wandred up and down other parts of the Ship, and with an audible found were wont to go about. But they were a bad fign and a fad omen, when they came folirary and alone, as fignifying the drowning of Ships; but when they two came together, they were a happy fign : No fign in the Zodiack more fortunate then Gemini, and were fore-shewers of a happy voyage: but it is faid that by the same argument they are believed to fly and depart when Helen comes, which is a threatning and ominous symptome; this thing in that place was reputed a miracle, and therefore Caffor and Pollux were religiously worthipped by the Mariners, and so the people being arrived fafely at their port, for their safe deliverance did solemnize their rites, and Ceremonies unto the Samothracian gods. Sabel. lib. 5. Ennead. I.

21. Marcin Tullim relates in his first book of Tusculane Questions, that Trophonim and Agamedes, building a Temple unto Apollo and worshipping that god, did require a reward of their labour nothing that was certain, but that which should be best for Man. Unto whom Apollo about three dayes after did shew that he would give them that which they desired, who assoon as he began to shine (for by Apollo is meant the Sun) they were found both dead in the morning.

Ræsuthe King of the Lydians being orecome by Cyrus, and put upon a Funeral pile, that he might be burned, with a loud voice called thrice upon Solon; and Cyrus, understanding the cause of it, commanded the fireto be extinguished, but a little while after when the fire prevailed much against him, and waxed very servent, he invocated and called upon Apollo, that if ever there were a gratefull sacrifice or offering to be given by him, that he would free him from the present evill; on a sudden therefore black pitch and firene t racks of liq rodotse, lib.

Erece to have cal which they law, to he Erechtheas they invoced destroy the about Athon and extruct Shipwrack ships were ble compassides diver boats. H

N a Vult steen log if their p will kindle tealmable, kin, tap, 6 in no wife

in no wife
he did vow
he would to about to by the Sabeans Gors: fear
for the wir hang in a
force xult beat back

Who be how prev was ready is forficient likewise.

angdom

ex Plutarel

259

black pitchy Clouds orespread as it were with a black veil, the fair and screne tace of the Heavens, and bucketted down whole cataracts of liquid showers, and so put out and quenched the fire. Herodots, lib. 1.

Erxes bringing a great Navy against the Greeks at the end and extremity of the Magnesian Land, the Athenians are reported to have called upon the North-wind, they received of an Oracle which they had, that they should invoke and call upon his son in law, to help them, for Boreas had Orythuia Attica the daughter of Erechtleus the King. Therefore whilst they laid siege in Chalcide they invocated Boreas and Orythuia, that they would help them, and destroy the Ships of the Barbarous, even as they had done before about Athon: and Boreas performing the same, they went thence, and extructed to him a Grove near the River Ilissus. But in that Shipwrack, they that speak of the sewest, say not sewer then sorty ships were cast away and sunk of Xerxes Navy; and an innumerable company of men lost, and a great treasure of Money spent, besides divers ladened or Merchandizing Ships, and Barks, and Fisherboats. Herodotus, lib. 7.

IN a Vulcanian hillock hard by Agrigentum, there are certain green logs and pieces of wood, which being put upon the Altar, if their prayers be just and righteous, of their own accord they will kindle and catch fire; but if their requests be unjust and unteasonable, there will be no fign of comburation or burning. Fulgilib. 1. cap. 6.

Romulus in the Sabines War which was transacted about the Capitoll, and the Pallace, and high Tower, when he could in no wife stay the shamefull slight of his Souldiers in that skirmish he did vow to dedicate a Temple unto Jupiter Stator, the Stayer, if he would take away that aguish sear from the people that were about to sty, and would but stay the Romans against their enemies the Sabeans; and that they that stayed behind, should be the Victors: scarce had he said his prayers, ere he obtained his request for the wings of the Army being repaired, the battel did not onely hang in Aquilibrio, but the Sabines were repelled (who a while before exulted for their Victory) even unto Curtius's Lake, and was beat back with great detriment and slaughter. Sabellicus, lib. 2. cap. 5: ex Plutarchi Romulo.

What shall I say of Numa Pompilius? (who succeeded Romalus being called into the Kingdome out of the Sabine Courts) how prevalent was his prayer, and how daring and bold which was ready to allure Jupiter out of heaven. A thing (of which there is sufficient witnesse) not onely believed, but attempted of others likewise. Tullus Hossilius, who after him was possessed of the Kingdome, who did not undergo nor perform the sacred rires wise-

LIZ

23.

24.

25.

26,

Baden-Württemberg

Is,

Saturnal

wete telled

ell of them called up.

they would no were in

mleffe mey

Pollax (no

he Sea be-thele two

ubitaneous

, and the

Joses twy-

pint of the s, at other

and down

ic wont i

when my Ships; ha

: No light

chewers th

nt they at

s a threa

as repute

y worthip d fafely at their rites

Quelion

unto Apol

cir labou

for Man.

t he would

an to think

lead in the

and pot

th 2 1000

the capic

tle while

sed very

ver there

, that he

therefore

Place

ly when his whole house was fet on fire, and burned by lightning. Sabel, lib. 2. cap. 5.

Tullus Hostilius when he had Marshalled and ordered his army to march towards the River of Tibris and Aniens, and in the Fidenates and Vejentians; and knowing the imbecillity and want of strength of the Albanes against their enemies, he vowed to sacrifice twelve Samians to Mars, and so quickly became the Victor or overcomer of the Army, who now was so accounted by right of Victory, and also was grown by hope and strength unequally match't to his enemies. Ibidem.

28.

29.

Greater counterfeiting and Apeing of piety (but yet who should reckon the worshipping of Heathen gods and spirits piery?) may be seen in Tucia, and appeared most eminently in a Vestall there. Whether the confidence of the woman in this Case, or the obedience of the evill spirits is greater, is a great doubt; being commanded to plead her own caule, and to vindicate and clear her felf from her afperfion, which was put upon her by her accuser, and the Vestall was defired that if she had all her time carried and demeaned her felf chastly, and piously in her Ceremonies, that the should hold and fix her self with her anchora spei, upon the Rock of confidence; fo the made her requests to her gods, and going to a bank of a River, having many accompanying her, that they might know the event and exit of the businesse, the brought a sieve full of the Water of the River to the High Priest (before whom her cause was formerly pleaded. There is also added to this miracle, that her accuser being very narrowly sought after, never appeared more. Ibidem.

There was a like miracle manifested about Claudius, that was the worshipper of Idolizer of the same Ceremony, and when her too too loose life had contracted some calumny, who did endeavour to wash off the blot, and to dispell that cloud that encurtained her glory, and to blow away that sume of opinion that was in the minds of most men, did attempt to remedy this malady by some such apparent testimony which would require more admiration of the succeeding Ages to wonder at it, then faith to believe it: this Vestall (Virgin shall I call her?) first humbly praying, and tying her belt, quickly removed a Ship which carried Juno, sticking in the Tiberine sands, and drew it against the stream, which a great deal of the Roman strength and sorce (though viet armis) after very many encounters could not stir nor remove. Sabellicus, Lib. 2.

Adrian

grievoully) of them ber But Severiae burning inting inting inting inting in the Beyer I mile onely table. And Adrian, in a strived to be his Epistle How moseral arin vita A

Drian

Neph

ged by facr
who called Olymp, 27.
black and
from thence pointed few fiveld lye d
gods. And tan were of Which by c fron, Saint

The per Bietra, ctifice ctifice ratour and they appoin whole Reg fhould kin hearth at 1 fresians go to extinguate faiftly as goddeffe, ar crifice, ar took fire f Mateus, a tylame da kms were A Drian the Emperour, Lucius Commodus being adopted, and hoping for the Empire, commanded Severianus, and Fuscus his Nephew (which feemed to take the surrender of the Empire grievously) to be slain, much suspecting and envying them; one of them being sour score and ten years old, the other but eighteen. But Severianus before he was to be strangled, called for some fire, and, burning incense; he said, Vos, & Dei, testor me nihit mali commississe: i.e. Be ye my witnesses, Oye gods, that I have done no evill to Adrian, I wish onely this mischief, that when he shall desire to dye, he shall not be able. And thus one of them yielded to the sates. Afterwards Adrian, in a great sicknesse, often desired death in vain, and often strived to be his own executioner (by reason of his wicked heyre); his Epistle which intimates this is extant, for he writes thus; How miserable athing is it to desire death, and not to dye. Dion. Cassius, in vita Adriani.

Which by chance was to the unknown God, upon which occafion, Saint Paul began to Preach Christ to the Athenians. Laertius,

He Persians being or ecome and beat back to Platea a City in Apollo answered the Grecians (consulting about a facrifice) that they should rear up an Altar to Jupiter the Liberatour and freer, but before they had folemnized the ceremonies, they appointed that all fire should be extinguished through the whole Region which was polluted by the Barbarians, and that they should kindle all their fires our of that pure fire on the common hearth at Delphos. Therefore by and by the Magistrates of the Grecians going all about, commanded all them that used any fire to extinguish it. Euchidas of the Plataensians, promised that as fwiftly as that could be done, that he would bring fire from the goddeffe, and to he went to Delphos, and to purging his body by facrifice, and washing it with water, being Crowned with Laurell, rook fire from the Altar, and running backwards, went towards Plateas, and before the ferting of the Sun, returned, and in that very fame day measured and travelled a thousand paces, so the Citizens were faved, unto whom he delivered the fire, but he quickly 30.

5 I.

32.

Adrias

BLB

ls,

lightnice.

dhis atmy

and in the

nd want of

to incribee

tor or over.

tot Vida

match's to

who should

ts picty ?)

yina Ve-

this Cafe,

te and clear

her acculer,

me carrie

nonies, the

upon the

ds, and go-

her, the

e brought

eff (betore

lded to this

fter, never

that was

dny, who

nat cloud

ie of opt-

not to it.

ly which

5 to 1000-

in fall !

quickly Tiberiu

rear des

fter very

, Lik 2,

fainted, and a while after died : the Plataensians did bury him in the Temple dedicated to Diana at Euclia, and did superscribe this Tetrameter Verse.

Euchidas Delphos cucurrit, et die reversus uno est.

Euchidas unto Delphos one dayrun, Return'd again ereth' fetting of the Sun. Plutarchus, in Aristide.

It is reported that Hercules the son of Alemena, offering sacrifice to Jupiter in Olympia, when he could not drive away the slies, it is said that the Elii called the driver away of them in and did do sacrifice to him, and when the sacrifice was offered, on a sudden all the slies slew beyond the River Alpheus. Therefore was it reserved and kept by the Eleans to drive away slies from Olympia, and the same ceremony was used. Pausanias, lib. 5.

34.

Aurelian the Emperour, when he came against the Marcomannians unto Mediolanum a Town in Italy, he writ to the Senate that they should look into the Sybillaan books, what rites were necessary to crave the help of their gods. Which when the Senate had done so, and had it revealed by a divine revelation more then by any humane strength or counsels, the Barbarians durst not go beyond their prefixed limits, affrighted by such terrible sights and Wonders, and so a clear path was laid open for Aurelians Victory. But he, least that he might not seem ungratefull not to acknowledge his help from Heaven besides the great rewards of this Victory, and Thanks-giving being given through the whole City of Rome, he gave sitteen Millions of the weight of Gold, and a great treasure of Pearls, for a remembrance thereof. Fulgosu, lib. 1. cap. 1.

The Persians commanding Asia when they had spoiled and ranfack't all the Holy places and Temples of the Greeks excepting the Temple of Semidea Rhea which was in Castamus Cherronesus, neither fortified with Walls nor Watches, and left it unviolated, the plundering Robbers pilling and poling all places, and this was that place which was onely left unwalled, and that might of all other been taken without danger, they report the cause to be this; the universall beneficence towards all men, for the did teach and instruct the sick in Dreams, the cure of their diseales, and did recover very many that were desperately sick. Furthermore, those Women that were in Travell, she delivered them from the perill of Child-birth. Diodorus, lib. 5.
cap. 17.

Without

many Religit
ged about w
of there was the was fed,
per, the floor
cord to their
of men or be an Altar the athes blown Ennead, 5.

A Great their versagitated a their Oracle would, they pacify the I Eufeb Lib 4.4

THeyre

trey who trey who had said feed and them to her, and to the being then No had ryed the folive and un fo that he dr

Kind Kind Kind Boo, onely contain Boo, chetrabout king many lent of all, skin of the lasts, the concede an concede an

Hunters to

VI Ithout Crotonis anciently there was a Temple dedicated to Juno Licinia and was very first and hallowed with many Religious ceremonies, and where was a Grove that was hedged about with high Firre-Trees: in the Center and middle thereof there was a feeding place, a graffe-plot where all kind of Cattle was fed, which was facrificed to the goddeffe, and had no keeper, the flocks overnight would ftear themselves of their own accord to their Stables, being no wayes lyable either to the injury of men or beasts, there was a great wonder and miracle related of an Altar there which was in the day time, never was there any ashes blown away by the violence of the VVinds. Sabellicus, lib. 3. Ennead. 5.

A Great barrennesse comming upon the grounds of pelasgus, they devoted the spring to their gods, being able to perform their vowes, they neglected to perform it, therefore being exagitated and vexed with a grievous pestilence, and enquiring of their Oracle, the cause of that evill, the Oracle answered, in turnos or is a discours a singure, that having whatsoever they would, they have not given that which they promised, therefore to pacify the Deity, they were to pay the tenths. Dionys. Halicar. lib. 1. Euseb. lib. 4. praparat. Evangelica.

They report that in Italy the Rock of the Posidoniacorians there was such a miracle used: for there was a hunter in that Countrey which is called Andragathia; he was wont to dedicate the heads and feet of those things, which he had killed to Diana, and assix them to the Trees, and when he had taken a great Boar in contempt of the goddesse, he said, he would onely ofter the head of it to her, and tying it to a certain Tree, one day when he turned a little out of the way, to shroud himself from the heat of the Sun being then Noon-tide, he slept under that tree, under which he had tyed the head of it, and fell assep; then did the garter dissolve and untye of it self, and the head of the Boar fell upon his head so that he dyed. Diodorus, lib. 4. cap. 3.

Eneus the King of Calydonia, there being a great plenty of all Kind of grain in Oetolia, and when he had facrificed to other gods, onely Diana excepted, the goddesse being angry, sent a Calydonian Boor of a great bignesse, to destroy the neighbouring Region thereabout: and Meleager to stay this, being in full strength, taking many conforts with her, killed the Boar, and so by the consent of all, she obtained the reward of the slain beast, that was, the skin of the Boor. And when in a hunting time he was with Atalanta, the daughter of Schanei, being much enamoured of her did concede and grant to her that skin, which was his reward for killing that wild beast. Which being done, and Thestes sons being Hunters together with him, taking it very ill to prefer a stranger

36.

37.

38.

20.

Baden-Württemberg

Is,

ry him in cribe this

Armile.

a facrific

ov the flies,

erwäg, 100

teres, on a

in Olympia,

LACON TREES

Senate that

te necellar

ete had done

hen by m

go beyond

ns Victory

to acknow-

rds of this

the whole

weight a

nce thereof.

ed and ran-

els excep-

plemose is

unviolated,

might G

e capie to

or the did

their di-

esperarely

vell, file

165 lik, 5.

Withou

40.

Woman before them, and disapproving Meleagrus's fact, they by their traps and amouthes, took the skin from Atalanta, when the should return into Arcadia; then Meleager, as well agitated by love, as exagitated and excited by ignominy, at first he admonished those robbers that they should restore the reward of Vertue which was given to that Woman by him, but they, contemning his words, he flew them all, for they were the Brethren of Althea: but the being much grieved for their flaughter, execrated and curfed Meleager, and beg'd of the immortal gods, who had heard her prayers, that they would put an end to the life of her Son. fome iay that in Meleagers birth, the destinies appeared to Althea in a dream by night, and faid, then should the life of her Son Mileager be expired, when that wood (which was a quenched charcolled firebrand) was burned out: the child being born, Althea thinking that by faving that Wood, the should also fave the life of her Child, the diligently referved and kept it. Afterwards being grievoufly tormented, and vexed by the death of her Brethren, the burned the fireband, and then the cause of her fons death came to light, and repenting her of the fact, the hanged her felf. Diodorus, lib. 4. cap. 2.

C Tymphalus a River in Arcadia, maketh a great Lake or Gulph, and percollating, and being filtred through the Veins of the Earth, infinuaces it self at length into the Argolick field, and there its name is changed; for Stymphalus 'tis called Erafinus in the dayes of Paufani,u: this miracle happened, when a folemn rite was very cursorily performed by the Arcadians to the Stymphalian Diana; and in the first place the rites, for their countrey being Pretermitted. incontinently the Grove fell upon that cavern, under which the River Stymphalus did drain and sweat through the Earth's pores, therefore the mouth of the passage (by reason of the interveining rubbish) being dam'd up, and the water making a reflux and flowing retrogradely, the water did spread and expand it self over. all the adjacent fields no lesse then 400. paces, and made a great pool or Gulph. And so by chance it happened that a hunter chaing his Harr, when the had fluck her felf in the dirt of the fen, being chafed with grief of mind, fwam through the water, and he had not left off the pursuit after her, ere a great chasma or Gulph both swallowed up him and the wild beast together (they report) that by and by the standing water finding the channel of the River, and following it, so that the whole Lake was drunk and dryed up in one day, the ceremony being more preparedly and magnificently made to Diana. Paufanias in Arcadicis.

Chariot. Servius, lib. 3. Georg.

Hercules

Naib

A fieg

numents,

rubbiih an

execute th

they were the gods b

Tomb and

labour and

being proc

main, to ft

Camp, wi

vers all di

felf dyed.

iaw ipectr

walking an of the Mon

crificed an

toappeale

Laswhe

Lup Pallas

he rece

Display

did they tee

ore their go

aca with a

what mean

क्षेत्रपात्र से

And fofto

adorned w

Comes, lib,

THe (

1 gods

that, they did appea

ong mous

BLB BADISCHE LANDESBIBLIOTHEK

267

Naibal and Himilco being two Carthagenian Captains, befieging Agrigentum, commanded their Souldiers that they thould cast and throw down all the Sepulchres and Monuments, and so by that ruine draw and coatract a great heap of rubbith and to bring it to the Wals; neither was the Army flow to execute this command, nor to bring this work to passe ; but whilest they were digging there, a great reverence of Religion and awe of the gods began to leize on some of the minds of the Army. For the Tomb and Sepulchre of Thero, a Monument of great labour and labour and Art, shaken by lightning, trembled : which miracle being procured for some of their Priests, when they saw the multitude make haste to pull it down, laboured with all might and main, to stay and forbid it; and suddenly a pestilence invaded the Camp, which destroyed many, neither did it wrest a few into divers affictions and calamities in which Annibal the Captain himfelf dyed. As also those that did watch by night, did think they faw spectrums and ghosts, and the shadows of them that were dead walking and wandring in shades. And Himileo gave over spoiling of the Monuments, and quickly performed his Rites to his gods, facrificed an Infant to Saturn, and drowned a whole company of Pricits to appeale Neptune. Diod. lib. 13.

Lus when he saw Minervaes Temple on fire, funning in haste, took up Pallas's Image which fell from Heaven, and instantly he was struck blind. A while after the wrath of the Goddesse being appeaded, he recovered his sight again, Plutar, cap. 34. Paral.

Pagasus bearing the Images of Dionysius out of Eleuthera a City in Boetia into Athens, the Athenians did neglest their god, neitner did they receive him (as the custome was) with pomp. Wherefore their god was angry, and infected the privy members of the men with a grievous discase. And enquiring of the Oracle by what means they might be freed from this punishment, had this answer, that they should receive their god with pomp and honour. And so from this they carried through the whole solemnities, pikes adorned with green leaves, as well publickly as privately. Natales Comes, lib. 5. cap. 13.

The Captains of the Japigans did take out the Images of the gods out of the Temples, who boastingly said it was bethat they should give place to those that are most potent. And because of that, they were smote with darts and fire from heaven. And there did appear Darts afar off, which were shot out of the Clouds. And all their children unto this day are shaven unto the skin, and wear long mourning Gowns, and are to all, more rare then good men.

Atherem, lib. 12, cap. 7.

When

Mm 2

49;

50.

5 I.

ils,

s fact, they

agitated by

it he admo-

d of Verme

contemping

n of Allies

ted and cur.

ad heard ter

Son, lone

Althes in a

on Meleago

charcole

libra think

lite of het

s being grie

tethren, the

ath came to

e of Gulph

eins of the

, and then

in the days

E Was VET

Diana; an

hich the Ri-

th's ports

nter veiner

reflux and

it felf over

de a great

unter cha-

the fen, beer, and he or Gulph

ney report

the River,

dryed up

nificently

BE PERE

draw his

Hercald

Hen the Eginetæ invaded the Epidaurians, and carryed 53. away the Olive-tree Images of Damie and Auxefie, by reason of which the Epidaurians yearly were constrained to bear the rites to Erillhem at Aibens (for by that law they had granted the Epidaurians power of their Olive-trees) the Epidaurians refused to lergo their bargain; Therefore the Athenians fent a Cart into Egina to fetch back the Statues, that they might bring the Images as though they had been made of their wood, therefore they endeavoured with might and main, and ropes cast about, to draw the Statues into their Ships. But as they drew them, the Images fell on their knees, and from that time they alwaics remained in that posture. Moreover, when there was a great Thunder and Earthquake, the Rowers were made mad, and wounded one another grievously, and slew all, save one that was the Messenger of this flaughter, who betook himfelf to Phalerus. Herodorm, Libro 5.

A Reabarus a Persian, the son of pharnax who had a comission from Mardonise, for the Circuit of 60. miles, when he rushed into Neptunes Temple, and wickedly and irreligiously upon his Image, in the siege of the City he was much troubled with the flux of the Sea, and being constrained to raise his siege, when he with his Army retreated into Pallenes, he lost a great part of it by the overslowing Tides of the Sea. Herodot. lib. 8.

Pub. Scipio Africanus Minor, when he had granted leave to his Souldiers to take Carthage, a certain Souldier going into the Temple of Apollo, did attempt to bereave the Image of the Golden Vestment; for which thing Apollo being angry, caused that those sacrilegious hands should be found cut off, among those fragments of the Clothes and the skirts of the Trunk or body of the Image. Valer. Max. lib. 1. cap. 2.

The Grecians convented and met together in Aulis being to fail to Troy. Agamemon going a pretty way from the Army, seeing a she-Goat about Dianaes Grove (ignorant of Religion) which was in that place, smore it with a Dart, not long after Diana being angry, sent the Pestilence into his Army, a certain Religious Woman assirtmed that Diana was vexed for the death of her she-Goat, in which she much delighted, and that she would have punishment of the Army for such a facrilegious sact, and that she could not be appealed before he that was the Authour of this wickednesse, did sacrifice his eldest daughter, &c. Di-Bis, lib. 1.

Pancrates

Paners, kind of an gether will bux Pompel fon did ea For a Who fight of his an enen when they and being them on the Athaneus,

They he the Parm. But a Wooday, he did the men of the Gold memory of Palating, li Domesti tues, and to ipouled the ple was in I ple of Ari when he to devised to blemat. Gr

Cambicas

Philosophia firain much of et marchat, t crated in a crated in a far King of and et al.

den Cups dea Lion

Giry Tal

269

Pancrates Arcadicus, in inscriptis Marinis operibus, declares the fish Pompilus, cailed also Nautillus, is not onely in esteem with Neptune, but with all the gods in Samothrace. When the Golden kind of men as yet lived, Epopeus, of the Icarian Island, fishing together with his ion, and feeing that he could carch no other fish but Pompills, he did not refrain from eating them, but he with his fon did eat them all. But shortly after he suffered for his villany. For a Whale coming to the Ship, swallowed up Epopeus in the sight of his son. Moreover Pancrates doth relate, that the Pompilus is an enemy to the Dolphin, and that they let the Mechi go Scot-free when they have eaten a Pompill, for they become unprofitable; and being troubled after they have caten them, the water casteth them on the shore, where they are food for Cormorants and Gnats. Athaneus, lib. 7. cap. 7.

They say that a certain man hid a piece of holy Money which he thole out of the Temple of Apolo at Delphes, in that part of Parnassus, which is thadowed most with Woods and Trees. But a Wolf violently killed him sleeping, and afterwards every day, he did make the City resound with his howlings. When the men of Delphos began to think that it could not be done without some divine providence, following the beast, they found the Gold which was taken away by sacriledge, and for the memory of the thing, they dedicated a Brazen Wolf to Apollo. Pausanias, lib. 10.

Sambicus a certain man of Eleus (a City of Thrace) together with some other of his companions, threw down many Brazen Statues, and fold them. Afterwards attempting greater things, he spoiled the Temple of Diana their Guardian. For her Temple was in Elis (a City of Achaia) which they called the Temple of Aristarchus. But he being apprehended presently after, when he refused to betray his companions, he was torn with new devised torments, amongst which he lost his life. Plutarch. in problemat. Grac.

Philomelus, who first possessed the Temple of Apollo at Phocis restrained his hand from the holy things, which necessity did permithim to take. But Onomarchus which succeeded him, spent much of the Money in War. Phyallus the third, the brother of Onomarchus, took away a great number of the gifts which were consecrated in the Temple; to coyn Money, to pay his hired souldiers.
And truly having received 120. Golden bucklers dedicated by Casar King of the Lydians, which weighed two Talents, he cast them aside to make money, and likewise three hundred and sixty Golden Cups, which weighed twenty pounds, and the Golden Images of a Lion and a woman, so that all those things were valued at thirty Talents of Gold, and all those things which were coyned

. 1

584

59.

6.0

Baden-Württemberg

BADISCHE LANDESBIBLIOTHEK

1

PARTERIO

VIIS.

and carryed

Accepted by

ed to bear the

granted the

as retailed to

a Carr into ng the less.

erefore they

out, todray

, the image

remained in Thunder and

ed our ano-

Mellenger of

derodom, L.

d a comillion

visco he ruiteligiously up

roubled win

Gege, when he

eart of it of

leave to his

ing into the

of the Gal

cauled that

those tree

ody of the

being to fall

Army, Ico. gion) which

Diana be-

Religious

of her the

dhave po-

and that

Authors

Sec. 11

of the Gold, according to the account of Silver, did amount to four thousand Talents. But all the Captains did spend the summe of above fix thousand Talents out of filver things, which were confecrated as well by Crasia, as others: that if the whole value of the Gold and filver were accounted, it would amount to more then 10000. Talents. But all these were heavily punished for their impiety and contempt of the Deity. For Philomelus fighting against the Baotians, the revengers of facriledge, being wounded in many places, was thut into a certain steep place, whence he could not eafily get out (a punishment which sometimes was wont to be inflicted on Captives); he being afraid, cast himself headlong thence, and in the same manner, paying a due punishment to the Deity, he died. Diodorus, lib. 16. Onomarchus having his Army vanquithed by Philip the fon of Amyntas, swimming to the ships which were bound for the Athenian thore, died in the Sea. Phyallus was confumed with a perpetuall contagion. But Phaleem which after all them took away whatfoever was left of the gifts, lived long enough in fear, and divers great dangers, not that his fortune might be thereby better then the other companions of the wicked mischief, but that being tormented for a longer time, and made more known to many by his mifery, he might undergo a more famous and much mentioned calamity. Being toffed about with very much wandring, when he did refift Cidonia in Creet, he was firicken dead by thunder.

the Marble tiles that were to mend the Temple of June at Lacentum, to the Temple of warlike fortune, which he made at Rome. For it is affirmed that after this deed he was not long in his wits, but also yielded up the Ghost, by very great grief of mind when he heard that one of his two sons (which were waging war in Illiricum) was dead, and the other dangerously sick. By whose fall the Senate being moved, took care that the Tyles should be carried back to Lorem (a City in the uttermost part of Italy which was named Magna Gracia.) Valerius, lib. 1. cap. 2. & Livius, Lib. 42.

When the Persians, under the conduct of Xerxes, came to the most famous Temple at Delphos with an intent to spoil it, great miraculous things were presented to their sight. The evill Demons (whose habitation without doubt the same was) never saw a greater prey of men offered to them, then with that Tempess, they could appoint the same new superstition to Xerxes, and the whole World which he took with him. Two Rocks being suddenly smote down from the top of Parnassus, tumbled down upon the enemies lying under, and broke in pieces many that resisted. Moreover lightning being cast down from the Heavens with Thunder, and the holy armes moved out of the inner part of the house of their own accord, and a braying heard in the next Temple of provident Mi-

pervay

nerta, die themicive as if they Delphos ca theje varia gas faith, whole hai and at leng ter the offer they ough

Whee to a came the caught wire enemies what appear to the caught wire enemies who appear to the caught

Madine (for memoral th memoral experies the Empire by Cyaware they were n they were n Herodotus, 14, 20.

A Lexa thro Souldiers revenging bers blind.

Wied for a few and a few a nerva, did overthrow the Barbarians suddenly, so that they case themselves headlong down from the steep places of the Mountains, as if they were driven with madnefle, upon whom the men of Delphos casting stones and Darts made a great slaughter. And by theje various Phantaims, the Temple remained unviolated. Trogus faith, that the men of Delphos found four thousand men, whose whole hands were confumed by lightning, and the filthy tempest, and at length they proclaimed openly, that by how much the areater the offenie of the gods was than the offenie of men, by io much; they ought to use more sudden and grievous punishment. Diodor. Tib. II.

When Theron King of the hither Spain, was driven with rage to abolish the Temple of Hercules, which is at the Gades, (two Isles at the further end of Spain beyond Granate) having furnished his army of Ships with necessaries, the men of the Isles of Gades came against them, being carried in swift Ships, and battel being given, it was weighed in an equall ballance as yet, but on a fudden the Kings Ships were put to flight, and therewith being caught with an unexpected fire; they burned. Very few of the enemies which remained being taken, did declare, that Lions did appear to them standing on the Decks of the Ships of the Gades, and fuddenly their Ships were burned with beams fent in, fuch as are painted on the head of the Sun. Macrob. lib. 1. cap. 20.

Then the Scythians having gone out of their bounds, had spoyled the Temple of Venus Urania in Ascalon a City of Palæstine (for it was a very ancient Temple) the goddeste smore them and their Children with an effeminate discate, which they whom the Seythians call Enareas, can onely cure. Having enjoyed the Empire of Asia 28, years, at length being taken to a Banquet by Cyaxares King of the Medes, they were murdered, when they were merry in their Cups, as it was agreed upon before. Herodotus, lib. 1.

Lexander, the fon of Phillip of Macedon, when he had over-A thrown Miletum the best fenced City of Jonia, his pillaging Souldiers thronged into the Temple of Ceres. But Milesian Ceres revenging the fact, did cast flames of sire, which did strike the robbers blind. Valerius, lib. 1. cap. 2.

Then Pyrrhus King of the Epirots returning out of Sicily, paf-V fed by the people of Locrus, he spoiled the Temple of Proferpina notable for much Religion among the inhabitants of Lorrus, laying in derision: Unseasonable devotion is superstition, and to gather Riches tog ther without labour is wisedome. But the day after that he had committed that facriledg, his Navy being toffed with an ugly tempest, all the Ships which had the holy Money, were driven to 631

IIIS,

d amount to d the fumme

which were hole value of ount to more

punished for

velus fighting

ing wounded

, whence he

DES Was WOLL

delt headlong iment to the

ig his Army to the ships

e Sea. Phy

But Phaleen

of the gifts,

not that his

mions of the

er time, and

ht undergo i

toffed appl

in Creet, it

le he carrix

e of June #

he made at or long to 118

rief of mind

aging war in

whole falth

pe cattles

ich was na-

Littus, Lin

came to the

to foot it

The evil

Dever fan mpeft,they

the whole

denly imore

he esemies

Morows

under, and

ftheir own

vident Ma

67.

the shore of Italy. With which missortune being affrighted, he commanded that the Money should be sought out, and laid up again amongst the ancient treasures of the goddesse. Neither had he any good fortune afterwards. For being tossed with many mischances, at length entring into Argos, he died miserably. Suidas & Livius, lib. 9. secundi belli Punici.

THen Himilto Prince of Carthage (having brought almost all Sicily under his subjection) besieged Syracufa, he spoiled all the Temples, but in the first place, the Temple of Ceres and Proferpina. And while he studied how to gird his Camp, and encompasse his Tents with a wall, he demolished all the Sepulchres almost at the next Work to build his Wall, amongst which he spoyled the Monuments of Gelon of Demareta and his Wife, anciently builded with wonderfull work. But in a short time after he suffered deserved punishment for his sacriledge and impiety so arrogantly committed against the gods. For shortly his affairs went to wrack, all things being begun to be made worse, and afterwards when courage increased by little and little in Dionyfians, and he was accustomed to weary them with often fallying out, and fight with light cruptions, they alwayes returned Conquerours at all skirmithes. Also vain tumults among the Souldiers and fudden terrours were often stirred up in the silence of Midnight throughout the Camp, by which they did run to Arms in vain, the cause of it no man knowing, and their Tents being turned upside down with earthquakes, afterwards they perceived their enemies to break out of a bulwark upon them. A pestilence invaded the Camp of the befiegers in the Moor with a burning hear, which confumed the number of 150000. Dionyfim making use of that occasion, set fire on his Navy, and drove them to such extremity, that he compelled the Tyrant to buy a fafe return for him and the Carthagenians with a reward of three hundred Talents, having left and berrayed his companions. Being returned into his Countrey, he did lead a life exposed to the reproach of all, and was so miferable, that he went about the Temples of the City in a very thin Coat, declaring his impiety, and exhibiting his punishment to the Deity, having confessed his wickednesse against the Gods. Lastly despairing, he killed himself willfully, leaving a great fear to the Citizens of violating Religion. Diodorus, 126. 14.

When Delos was heretofore the chief Emporium of all Greece and that onely fenced with Religion, it defended all the inhabitants from the injuries of all others. But Menophantes a certain Commander of the Armies of Mithridates, who being driven by the command of the King, or his own infolence, arole against the Island, and invaded it with his Navy, having neither the defence of Walls, nor Arms. Where all things being beaten down, taken away, and pillaged, at length he laid the very City eeven with the gree (proudly be by meragin named the thridates his the calamir chants whit god comp Kingdome could refer a great fai

When who Helires, very wall there was known to bappened, the winter med with hardly be with its it violent me rage of the

in Achaicis

Paulanias,

Neptune A is at Tener itequent ie rune, excunruined. Historia.

provoked to they had ar the Altar o him in tha about the I Fountain.

Gatle of L

with the ground. In that destruction he cast the Image of Apollo (proudly being taken from its seat) into the Sea: That, being brought by the raging of the Sea to the bounds of the Bæstians at Laconia, named the place Epidelium. But neither Menophantes, nor Mithridates himself did escape the wrath of the god. For not long after the calamity of Delos, when he was carried into the Sea, the Merchants which had escaped his hand, slew Menophantes. But the god compelled Mubridates to lose his courage, having lost his Kingdome already, and being driven to and tro by the Romans, he could rest no where. There are some which say that he begged, as a great favour, from one of the Mercenary Barbarians, to be killed. Pausanias, in Laconicis.

When the Gracians had dragged out by force, and killed those who came to pray in the Temple of Neptune, in the City of Helires, a great and sudden Earthquake did not onely overturn the very walls, but also defaced the very foundation of the City, that there was not so much as any tokens lest, whereby it might be known to suture ages. And they record that another such destruction happened. Helires was incompassed with a deluge of the Sea in the winter season, and the very Grove of Neptune was so overwhelmed with that inundation, that the tops of the highest Trees could hardly be discovered: which comming to passe, the whole City with its inhabitants was suddenly destroyed as well by the most violent motion of the Earth, as the most abundant over-running rage of the Sea. In the fourth year of the Olympiad. 191. Pausanias, in Achaicis.

When the Lacedemonians were inraged against the Inhabitants of Ilota, which worshipped at the Temple of Neptune Asphalius (that is) the safe, as Suidas saith, (which is at Teneros); Sparta was shaken as well with vehement as frequent impulsions of the Earth, that not one house escaped ruine, except four houses amongst all the rest which escaped unruined. Pausanias, in Achaicis: et Elianus, Libro 6. variae Historiae.

V Hen Cytharoedes did dispute in contending for the honour of Juno at Sybarum, for that was the cause that provoked the Sybaritans to that contentious disputation, and when they had mutually gone to arms, Cytharoedes fled with his Stole to the Altar of Juno: but they forbore not to lay violent hands upon him in that place, but a little after they saw bloud sprinkled about the Temple, as if it had issued out of a continually-thowing Fountain. But when the Sabaritans had sent to ask counsell at the Oracle of Delphos, they received this answer:

60

70.

71.

Mn

Stand

/11s, firighted, te

and laid up

Veither had

h many mif-

y. Suidus &

ught almost

was helpur

ple of Cent Camp, and the Sepul-

ngit which

rt time af-

id impiety

his affairs

ife, and af-

in Dissy-

ren fallying trued Cone Souldien

of Midnight

in vain, the

ed uplide

r enemies

es, which

f that oc-

xtremity,

and the

wing left

countrey,

s 10 min a very

s punish.

ly, lea-Diose-

Greet

I the is-driven

against the dedown,

with

Stand off, my Sacred Tables come not near; whose hands are drench's in bloud, should Justice fear. which fresh distilling, thee forbids to venter, Into the threshold of my Temple t'enter. Good fates to them can never be foresold, who to flain Junoes Temple dare be bold. The Mulcs harmle se fervant thou hast flain, The god's revenge for which thou must suffain. who perpetrates base willfull facts, may know, He's sure to suffer heavy Judgments blow, Inexorable toth' unjust immortalls prove, Descended though by birth from mighty Jove. who on their necks, and childrens childrens dear, Justly will beaped vengeance fend to bear, Neither was revenge delayed. For when they waged Warre with the inhabitants of Crotonia, they were overcome by them, and their City was overthrown. Elianus, libro 1. de var. Histor.

William Eros Eyy

IN the Mountain Halesius, near Mantinea, was the Temple of Warlike Neptune, built by Trophonius and Agamedes, with Oaken boards, forbidding entrance not by the opposition of any bolt, but onely with a small Wollen rope drawn before it, which had a fecret force to drive men away. Never any one entered into this Temple, besides Epytus King of Arcadia, who having Lost his Son as foon as he entered into the Temple, he was fmitten blind by the fudden force of the Sea-water, boyling our of holy fountains, and not long after died. When the Emperour Adriants did build it up again, he did fet overseers amongst the workmen, lest any one thould look into the antient Altar, or fuffer any rubbel to be carried from it to any other place. Paufanias, in Arcadi-

IN the Mountain Lycam of Arcadia was the Altar of Jupiter Ly-73. cam, whither no man could come. If any one entred despising the Religion of the place, it was certainly requifire that he must dye within the space of that year. It is a wonderfull thing also that (as they lay) as well men as beafts, which by chance come into the circuit of this place, have no shadow of their bodies. And truly a Hunter cannot follow wild beafts that fly thither, but standing at the entrance, he cannot perceive any shadow that they have. It is certain that the men of Syena a City of Ethiopia, do thew no thad ows from their bodies at that time of the year, when Cancer is in Conjunction with the Sun. But in this Lycaus it doth happen in any part of the year. Paufanias, in Arcadicis.

They

prefently Temple w Arcanton. fed that h ter named

THey r

I of the

any one en

any incest

tenfold, 1 running a ving take panger a great bu 5.649. 1.

command Therefore the fands, trong Sout Sand carri ans with th fifth part o Where w of Ofiris; ( for his difg he killed t Bullofofir fering puni bro 21. THe Pe ( a City of little after

icr. Not o Ceres , Whi the goddeff Herodotus,

Hey report that in Cerynea a City of Achaia, was the Temple of the Eumenides, dedicated by Orestes. They believed that it any one entred in hither to fee it, pollured either with flaughter, or any incest, or kind of impiety, he being troubled in mind, would presently be cruelly terrified. Wherefore the entrance of the Temple was forbidden to all that strived otherwise. Pausanius, in

THen Erisichthon a certain The Salonian had cut down the V Grove of Ceres, she sent to him perperuall hunger, and caused that he should never be satisfied with meat. He had a daughter named Mestra, very well skilled in Witch-craft, whom he often fold, being turned into divers forms of living Creatures, which running away a little after, would return to her father having taken her former shape, and so she helped her fathers hunger according to her ability. Lastly, he was driven to so great hunger, that he eat his own flesh. Natales Comes, Mythol. libro 5. cap. 14.

THen Cambyfes King of the Persians, came to the Theban Egyp-V tians, he fent fifty thousand to destroy the Ammonians, and commanded that they should burn the Oracle of Jupiter Ammon. Therefore when they had gone seven dayes on their journey along the fands, and dined between the City Oasis and the Ammonians; a firong South-wind overwhelmed the whole Army with heaps of Sand carried along. He being gone against the Macrobian Ethiopians with the rest of the Army, when having scarce finished the fifth part of his journey, wanting Victuals, he returned to Memphis. Where when the Agyptians did make Holy-day for the Apparition of Ofiris; (in the shape of a Bull) he supposed that they had done it for his disgrace, as if they had reproached him for his misfortune; he killed the Priests and Ægyptians playing, he wounded the Bull of Ofiris, by which wound afterwards he pined away. A little after he killed his brother Smerdes, and his Sisters, suffering punishments worthy of his wickednesse. Herodotus, Libro 21.

He Persians burned the Anastorian Temple of Ceres in Eleu-I sis. Afterwards, when they were conquered at Plataa (a City of Beotia) by the Gracians, with a very great flaughter. Not one of the Persians was seen to enter the Temple of Ceres, which was there, nor lying about the Temple, as if the goddesse did drive away those, who had destroyed her Temple. Herodotus, Libro 9.

Suidas

Jevils.

aged Warre

ome by them,

0 1, de 10.

e Temple a s, with Oak

of any bolt,

mich had a

d into this

off his Son

ind by the

mains, and

id build it

, left any

bel to be

ATTESAS-

apiter Ly

delpinny the mail

hing allo

come in-

s. And

but ftm.

har they

iepia, do

, when it doth

THY

Quidas doth rehearfe, that there was one Anagyrafion a quick spi-Dritted man, (so named from the place Anagyrus in Attick) who, because an old man, his neighbour, cut down his Grove, thus revenged himself. The Concubine of the old man, cast a raging love upon his, who when she could in no wife penetrate the breast of the young man with the fense of her love, she voluntarily accufed him before his father, that he did not cease to appeach him of Whoredome. His father being perswaded by the Woman, did throw his fon headlong from the top of the house, and killed him. Afterwards repenting his deed, he hanged himself. Lastly, the woman cast her self into a Well. He doth write the Author of this thing, Hieronymus in opere de Tragadiarum Scriptoribus. Hence arole that Proverb ;

> Anagyrum commoves. Erafmus:

Esculapius grieving that a great part of a Grove, which was dedicated to him at Coos was cut down by Turulius one of the officers of Antonius, to make his Ships, but in that wicked service the parties of Antonius being overcome, Turulius was condemned to dy by the command of Cefar, who brought him to the place which he had violated, and caused, that being slain there, by the Cefarean Souldiers, he might suffer for the same destruction and overthrow of the Trees; (whereby the force of that Deity was made known) and that he might obtain freedome to those that were yet standing from the like injury. Afterwards the god encreafed his worship, which was had alwaies in very great esteem among the Inhabitants. Valerius, libro 1. capite 2. Lastantius, libro 2. de Origine erroris, capite 8.

Ollux Onomastici libro 5. writeth that amongst the Athenians, Aprildisolas, that is to fay, Virgins of Diana, were wont to be confectated or initiated before they were marriageable, there was a Law decreed at Athens, that no maid should be given in marriage to a man ei un douldeu vii ben, that is to fay, unlesse she had performed those facred rites to Diana, which they used to solemnize in the Moneth of January. Libanus in his Oration which he made in praise of Diana, sheweth that the Virgins nsed to put on a garment which they named Crocota, being of the colour of Saffron, and that they were not to exceed the age of ten years, nor under five, Diana was thought to be pleased with them, who for the like occasion, feemed to conceive some anger. They report that there was sometimes in Athensa Bear which was made so tame, that she was nothing at all offensive to any, but did freely feed here and there at her pleafure, wandring about, no one receiving any hurt therby. It happened that a young maid playing somewhat too sportively with the Bear, who inraged therewith, fuddenly and violently fnatcheth her: which her-brothers feeing, threw fiercely with part met v which wat doth purge dit, they t Numa, D Halefie I Naupa which was

Darts, and

abread abou

faited, the

lede they co

is, for the

nour of Dia

He T

Creop

that he wi

pipes, or o

excellthe

Lamb upo which wa

in Bieticu.

IN thee

fear, deli

er; Here

ceived of latery of t

more, wh

that no this being heave

Camenes, as

carri

tohim, w with figner them in a d when the w fore when f letters havi blind man Esculaping. oles, he lool

to be eased

Darts,

BLB

80.

277

Darts, and killed her, for which cause the pestilence began to rage abroad about the Countrey thereabouts. The Oracles being confused, the gods answered, that the sicknesse would not cease unlesse they compelled some Virgins Tis Tead Thouans aprile apriles, that is, for the destruction of the Bear, to kill some Virgins in the honour of Diana. Calius, lib. 26. cap. 19.

The Tanagrean Boetians had a Temple dedicated to Afercurius Creophorus for that Mercury did avert the Plague, when they carried about the Walls a Ram, for which cause he appointed that he who carried the Ram should be attended by Tanagrean pipes, or musick; he of the young men who was esteemed by all to excell the rest in heauty, in the seast day of Mercury, carrying a Lamb upon his shoulder, went round about the walls with it, which was a most present remedy against the Plague. Pausanias, in Boeticis.

IN the eighth year of the reign of Nama, the pestilence which raged all about Italy, wasted Rome also; The Citizens struck with fear, deliver a brazen target sent down from heaven by divine power; Hereupon they tell the King wonderfull stories, that they received of Ageria at Camene, and that those arms were sent for the safety of the City, and that they were to be kept with an eleven more, which were to be made of like sigure amplitude and form, that no thief for his profit might be able to invent the similitude being heavenly things, and that he ought to consecrate the sield at Camenes, and the Meadows lying about it, where they for the most part met with him, and that they should consecrate the Well which watered the sield to the Vestall Virgins, the water whereof doth purge and water all penetrables. To these having given credit, they tell that the disease presently departed. Plutarch. in Numa.

Phalesius a private man builded the Temple of Asculapius at Naupastum from the foundation. On a certain time the God which was worshipped at spidaurus, sent Anites a Noble woman, to him, when he was very sick, and almost blind, to make Verses, with signed Tables. The woman seemed to her self to receive them in a dream. But the thing was proved by the event. For when she came to Naupastum, she bid Phalesius to look upon the letters having taken away the Seal. At first he thought that a blind man could not see the letters. But being in good hope that Assume that had sent him something to cure him, unsealing the Tables, he looked upon the wax, and forthwith he perceived himself to be eased of the calamity of his sight. Pausanias, in Phocioic.

81.

823

833

Sefostres

711S.

a quick foi ditick) who

thus re-

It a reging

the break arily accu-

ch him d

man, did

illed him,

affly, the

Author of

. Hence

was de-

the off-

fervice

demned

e place by the

1 200

Was

that

ncrea-

mong

0 2, 11

to, be

e was matri-

d per-

112C 10

ode in

rment

that

Diana

asim,

eme-

5 00-

re at vely

WID

CEfostres the King of the Egyptians being dead, his fon (which D Herodotus calleth Farro) receiving the Crown, and taking his Fathers name, he in no wife imitated the glory of his Father. But was afflicted with the same misfortune as his Father. For being blind, either by the common nature of his Father, or, as fome fay, for his impiety against Nilus (into whosebelly he threw a Dart) he was compelled to fly to the affiftance of the gods, and having made divers sacrifices to appease the Deityes, for a long time he had no help. After ten years he received an answer, that the god which was worshipped in Heliopolis, being appealed, he should look upon the face of a woman, which knew no man carnally befides her own Husband : fo beginning from his own Wife when he had many, he found none that was uncorrupted, besides the wife of a certain Gardiner, whom he took to Wife after he had received his fight, but he burned all the rest in a certain Village. Which place the Egyptians afterwards called, The holy Turf. But he giving thanks to the god of Heliopolis according to the Oracle received, he erected two Obelisks of one stone, eight foor broad and an hundred high. Diodorus, lib. 1. cap. 4.

85. THen a certain woman faid to Adrian the Emperour being very fick, that she was admonished in her sleep by the gods, to exhort him, not to kill himself, although he seemed to languish under a tedious discase, because in a short time he should receive his health. The same woman did put out her own eyes, because the health of the Prince did not answer in time according to her report. Lastly also, she was admonished to kisse the knees of Adrian, and wash her eyes with the water which was in the Temple, and having followed the advice of her dream, the presently received her sight. In like manner a certain man being come from Pannonia, which was blind from his birth, having touched Adrian, obtained his fight, and Adrian was restored to his former good health.

86. Masis King of the Egyptians, married a Wife, (which some would have to be the daughter of Battus, the fon of Archefilaus: others, of Critobulus, a very honourable man amongst his people) by name Ladices, with whom when he lay in bed, he could not perform his marriage duty, as when he made use of other women. When it was so a long time, Amasis said to her, Thou, O Wife hast bewitched me, and therefore thou canst not escape by any policy, whereby thou mightest not perish by the worst death among all women. When Ladices could not appeale Amasis by denying it, the vowed (within her felf) to Venus, that if Amasis might copulate that night with her, she would fend an Image to her at Cyrena. Her wish being granted, Amasis copulated with her, and asterwards as often as he lay with her, he performed his matrimoniall duty, and afterwards he loved her dearly. And Ladices performed her vo remained w (meath lan fence, the within the

the Temp (no body which the N BEO pleof Apple and they Botolicis.

Here

Hot f longi the Temple by nature, plethat del a Village n things, wh Priefts call into the De fasting and health in th

Prichts, St E Pidam Eneffe o divers kind unde of fick leafes that w the Island Co the innerm The fame s spins at Tely creans. Th

fick people,

WORTE COVET

cales and na

379

med her vow, having made a Statue, and tent it to Cyrena, which remained whole till the time of Herodotus, being placed without the Cyrenes sian City. Herodotus, lib. 2.

WHen Milo Epirota, had cast a spear at Laodamia the daughter of Pyrrhus, which sled to the Altar of Diana, as to a defence, the goddesse revenging her, he ran mad, whereby he died within the space of 12. dayes.

deied

When a certain facrifice was performed to Jupiter Afcraus, a herd of Goats belonging to Helicarnassus being brought to the Temple, stood, and the prayers being ended, one of them, (no body guiding it) went torward till he came to the Altar, which the Priest taking, sacrificed. Apollonius, de Hist. Mirab.

em- 89. the

IN Bæotia they think that Hercules doth shut and open the Temple of Ceris Micale Sia every night. Moreover they put all the Apples which Autumn brings forth, at the feet of the Image, and they remaine very fresh the whole year. Pausanias, in Bæoticis.

Here was a Village of the Nyssaenes between Tralles and Nyssa, be-Alío able

There was a Village of the Ny same Achrata, where is a place belonging to Pluto, encompassed with a sumptuous Grove. Also the Temple of Pluto and Juno, and the Den of Charon, admirable by nature, which is above the Grove. They report that sick people that desire to be cured by these gods, do go thicher, and tarry in a Village near the Cave with those that are skillfull in the holy things, who sleeping, receive cures for them in their dreams. The Priests calling for the remedies of the gods, do oftentimes lead them into the Den, where remaining as in a Cave, they spend many dayes fasting and sleeping: sometimes those that are sick, do receive health in their own Dreams, by the guiding and advice of the Priests. Strabo, lib. 14.

E Pidaurm a City of Peloponesm, being ennobled by the samoufnesse of Asculapim, who (as the ancients write) hath cured divers kinds of diseases. But the Temple was filled with a multitude of sick people, and Tables hanging up, in which the discases that were cured were written. In the same manner it was in the Island Coa, and likewise in Trica. The City was settuated in the innermost Closet of the bosome of Saronicus. Strabo, lib. 8.
The same Strabo written that there was a samous Temple of Asculapius at Tetrapolis, which City was inhabited by the Jonians and Carians. That Temple was tull of an innumerable convention of sick people, troubled with divers discases, and the walls were every where covered with painted Tables, wherein were written the discases and names of them which were cured by that god.

91.

They

IIS.

fon (which

taking his other. But

For being s fome fay,

a Darr) he

nd having g time he

nat the god

he should

mally bee when he

the wife ad recei-Village.

Turf. But

he Oracle

pad and so

erour be-

fleep by

feemed

time be

her own

time ac-

to kille

nich was

am, the

in being

ing rou.

his for-

ch fome

is peo-

romes.

With

By Po-

20000 of co-

cyre. d af-

tion-

- They record that there is a Temple of Minerva Ilias, in which Dogs are nourished, to whom it is given naturally, as also by some certain knowledge, to sawn upon the Gracians when they come, but sollow the Barbarians with barking whereloever they shew themselves. Calim, lib. 23. cap. 30. Antiq. left.
- 73. There is a round Temple of Hercules of admirable structure in the beast-market of Rome, into which (they relate) neither Dogs nor flyes can enter. As no bird can enter into the Temple of Achill's before Borysthenes. Alexander ab Alexand. lib. 2. cap. 14.
- There was a Temple of Pallas at Methon, a City of Peloponnefus, Diomedes dedicating an Image, because before that, he received damage by most violent Winds in those parts, blowing very unleasonably, which presently after ceased, when they prayed to the goddesse, and afterwards no such calamity came upon the Inhabitants. From whence she got the name Minerva. Calius, lib. 20. cap. 24. Antig. lest.
- When Greece was troubled with a continuall drought, and the rest of Greece was no lesse distracted for want of rain, which was without Isthmas, than all Peloponnesus; they sent to Delphos, that they might know by the Oracle the cause and remedy of the calamity. There Pythia answered, that they must appeale Jupiner, but they must make use of £acus to sue for them, so that he is willing to obey. Therefore when they had received that answer, they sent out of every City, to entreat £acus to undertake the entreaty. He, having finished the sacrifices to Jupiter, and offered the vows, replenished all Greece with abundance of rain. For the memory of the thing, the Citizens of Argos, did erect statues for the Ambassadors. Pausanias, in Corinthiacis
- He Sepulchre of Aristomenes of Messene, is worthy to be feen 96. in a Colledge of Me Bene, (a City of Achaia in Greece) which they say in good earnest, is not empty, and a monument set up for honour of the body not prefent. For although he, being driven from the Spartanes, died in banishment, yet by the command of Pythius Apollo, his bones were carried back into his Countrey, and fuch things were ordained to be holy. They bound a Bull which was deflinated to the Altar, to a Pillar not far from the Tomb. He, being mad, and raging because of his bonds, did strive to go away. Which if the vvhile the Bull moveth nimbly, and danceth according to that, it is ominous to the Messenians: but if on the contrary, the Bull shal stand immoveable, they interpret that it portends some calamity to them. The Lacedemonians report the Heroick Aristomenes to have been at the Leudrican fight 187. years after his death, vvho affifting the Thebans against them, vvrought so, that he afflicted

tiem viith

A lhippe about to inv tory, Apollo amongli the dain death; Murrobius, l

The P which thithe amongh the the rest of a intercepted pel of M The Bush Delphos, a cicaped o more nob' them. I Delphos, at cated to the standard by which was

I vithing which was which was eccasion of the enemies when again more arme not shurit; mies fough out, That which defe which defe the Sabines ported, th

power of p

the great an

and devou

pernal, cap.

pool Hyam

Nthe S

0

281 them with a great discomfiture. Pausanias, in Meßeni-

T Pachinum, a Promontory of Sicily, Apollo Lybistinus is wor-A shipped with great devotion; for when the Lybians were about to invade Sicilie, their Navy having arrived at the Promontory, Apollo being invocated by the Inhabitants, fent the Plague amongst their enemies, and destroyed almost all of them with suddain death; whereupon Lybistinus was added as a firname to him. Macrobius, lib. 1. cap. 17.

He Persians, Xerxes leading them to the Chappel of Minerva, which standeth before the Temple of Delphos, as they came thither, upon a fuddain a Thunder-bolt from Heaven fell amongst them, with the two heads of Parnassus, being rent from the relt of the Mountain, with an horrid notic tumbled down, and intercepted very many of them; whereupon from the very Chappel of Minerva came most joyfull vociferations and jubilations. The Barbarians committing themselves to flight, departing from Delphos, they published their great discomfiture; those which escaped of them, fled to Bætia, reporting, That two armed men more noble then any of humane nature could possibly be, pursuing them. These two they said were Natives, and Heroick men at Delphos, the one Phylacus, the other Antonius, the Temples dedicated to them being there to be feen; That dedicated to Phylaem, standerh by the way above the Temple of Minerva; and that which was dedicated to Antonius, near Castalia, under the whirlpool Hyampeum. Herodotus, lib. 8.

N the Sabine Warr which was waged against the Romans for ra-I vishing the Virgins, The Romans made haste to shut the gate which was at the foot of the Viminalian Hill, (which afterwards by occasion of what happened, was called the gate of Janus) because the enemies did rush upon it; after it was made fast, flew open; and when again and again the third time the same thing happened, more armed men came to the threshold of it, because they could not thut it, to make it good against the enemy. And when the enemies fought most hercely on the other side, it was presently given out, That the Romans were overcome by Tacitm; for which cause, which defended the gare or entrance of the City fled. And when the Sabines had made an irruption into it through the gate, it is reported, that from the house of Janus, by this passage, the great power of torrents feattering water all about broke out, burning the great and vaste numbers of their enemies with scalding waters, and devouring them with rapacious gulphs. Macrobius, lib. 1. Saturnal, cap. 9.

97.

98.

99.

00

to which , as also by

when they

locates they

e structure

te) neither

the Temnd, lih. 2.

Feloponne-

that, he arts, blow-

when they

y came up-

nerva. (4.

ught, and

r of rain. nt to Del

d remedy

t appeale

n, lo that that an-

ertakethe

d offered

For the

es for the

to be feet

e) which

fer optor

iven from

of Pythin

and form

Wasde.

le, being Which to that,

calami. ents to vito

History

101.

An History of Miracles of Devils,

THe holy sheep of the Sunne; which are at Apollonia in the bosome of Ionicum, which in the day time feed along the River fide, which floweth out of the Mountain Lucmonen it rough the Apolloniatan field into the Sea; and chosen men, honourable by birth and Riches amongst the people, keep them lodged in the night in a Cave not fair from the City, the people every year making new election, for that the Apolloniate by a certain Oracle were brought to put an high value upon the Sheep. There a certain Gentleman called Evenius chosen to take the care of looking to the Sheep, upon a time fell a fleep, and Wolves entring into the Cave, killed fixty of them; which when the Apolloniair underflood, they condemned him to the loffe of his eyes for fleeping when he should have warched; upon execution of which sentence, their cattle ceased to bring forth young ones, and the earth to yield her fruit, and they had Cartle at Dodona and Delphos. The Prophets being asked the cause of this present evill; answered, because they had unjustly deprived Eventus the keeper of the holy theep of his eyes, and that the Wolves were fent by the gods, and that their punishments for this wrong should not cease till he was fatisfied by those who had perpetrated this wrong to him whatforver Evenius himfelf conceived due fatisfaction; and then that the Gods would so bleffe them, that they would find themfelves happy. The Apolloniare keeping these Oracles close, chose certain Citizens to perform them, who come to Evenius fitting in a flation for the purpose, and fitting down with him, discourse of other things, at last came to speak of the miseries of the times; which making as an introduction to speak of his wrong, they demand of him what mulch he would with the Apolloniata to undergo for his full farisfaction, who having not heard of the fentence of the Oracle, faid that he defired two mannours which he conceived the greatest revenues belonging to the Apolloniata, and a house which he knew to be the best in the City : the Citizens presently affented, and telling what directions they had received from the Oracle, and buying the Mannours of the Owners thereof, gave them to Evenius, who presently thereupon obtained divination from the gods, whereby he grew famous. Herodotus, Libro 9. cap. 7.

The Pilappii inhabit that furthest part of Scandinavia, bordering upon the frozen Sea, and almost inclosed with the Sea; These neither till the ground, nor nourish any cattle, but the Tarandus or Buff which they make use of in the Winter when the waters are glaz'd, and all things made stiff with the Frost; for they live by hunting and sishing, and they have ever hitherto worshipped wood and stones; when they went on hunting, sishing, or began any other business, having used certain adjurations, they endeavour to move out of their place their gods which they consult; which if they easily perform, they conceive they favour their enterprise, enterprise,

without m

they canno

that their

nor; The

kinds of

mon and I

made of b

the veffel

upon the

Frog dor

touched in it, and ha

ly; the r

which th

(as they

hoft ist

learned

roully.

enterprise, and promise successe; but if they cannot move them without much trouble, they think their fuccels is denyed; and if they cannot possibly move them out of their places, they conclude, that their gods are offended; And therefore they think they are to be appealed by a certain facrifice, which they order in this manner; They have a brazen vessel, wherein are the pictures of all kinds of four-footed Beasts, of Birds, and Fishes, which are common and plentifull amongst them; they have the image of a Frog made of brais annexed to a piece of Iron fastned to the middle of the vessel like a plumb; afterwards using adjurations, they beat upon the veffel, and into the picture of whatfoever creature the Frog doth thereupon fall or leap, as foon as the frog had but touched it, they procure a living creature of that kind; they kill it, and hang the head thereof upon a Tree which they account holy; the rest they cook or dress, and confume with their friends which they call about them; and according to their facred rites, (as they think) they anoint themselves with that wherewith the host is boyled; such holy rites finished, (as they say) they have learned by experience, such things they undertake, succeed prosperoully. Olaus Magnus.

Of

283

BLB

border the Sea; but the hen the hen the ring, or they contheir 711S.

ones in the

d along the mes that the

honoutable

n lodged in

eople every

у а сепал

eep. Tree

ire of look

entring into

rate under-

or fleeping

thich feat

lptos, The

wered, be-

f the holy

the god

ale till le ing to him ; and then find them lofe, chok tting in a courfe of he times; they de undergo nce of the erved the le which Mented, Oracle. them to on from Libro 9.

