INTRODUCTION.

The SHEPHERD and the PHILOSOPHER.

R EMOTE from cities liv'd a Swain, Unvex'd with all the cares of gain; His head was filver'd o'er with age, And long experience made him fage; In fummer's heat and winter's cold He fed his flock and penn'd the fold; His hours in chearful labour flew, Nor envy nor ambition knew; His wiGom and his honeft fame Through all the country rais'd his name. A deep Philofopher (whofe rules Of moral life were drawn from fchools)

INTRODUCTION.

The Shepherd's homely cottage fought, And thus explor'd his reach of thought.

Whence is thy learning? Hath thy toil O'er books confum'd the midnight-oil ? Haft thou old Greece and Rome furvey'd, And the vaft fenfe of Plato weigh'd ? Hath Socrates thy foul refin'd, And haft thou fathom'd Tully's mind ? Or, like the wife Ulyffes thrown By various fates on realms unknown, Haft thou through many cities flray'd, Their cuftoms, laws, and manners weigh'd ?

The Shepherd modefily reply'd, I ne'er the paths of learning try'd; Nor have I ream'd in foreign parts To read mankind, their laws and arts; For man is practis'd in difguife, He cheats the most diferning eyes: Who by that fearch fhall wifer grow, When we ourfelves can never know? The little knowledge I have gain'd, Was all from fimple nature drain'd; Hence my life's maxims took their rife, Hence grew my fettled hate to vice.

The daily labours of the bee Awake my foul to induftry. Who can obferre the careful ant, And not provide for future want? My dog'(the truftieft of his kind) With gratitude inflames my mind : I mark his true, his faithful way, And in my fetvice copy Tray.

In conftancy, and nuptial love, I learn my duty from the dove. The hen, who from the chilly air With pious wing protects her care, And ev'ry fowl that flies at large, Infructs me in a parent's charge. From nature too I take my rule,

To fhun contempt and ridicule. I never with important air In converfation overbear.

Can grave and formal pafs for wife, When men the folemn owl defpife ? My tongue within my lips I rein ; For who talks much, must talk in vain-We from the wordy torrent fly : Who liftens to the chatt'ring pye ? Nor would I, with felonious fleight, By ftealth invade my neighbour's right. Rapacious animals we hate : Kites, hawks, and wolves deferve their fate. Do not we just abhorrence find Against the toad and ferpent kind ? But envy, calumny, and fpite, Bear ftronger venom in their bite. Thus ev'ry object of creation . Can furnish hints to contemplation; And from the most minute and mean A virtuous mind can morals glean.

Thy fame is just, the Sage replies; Thy virtue proves thee truly wife. Pride often guides the author's pen, Books as affected are as men ?

The LION, the TYGER, and the TRAVELLER.

A CCEPT, young PRINCE, the moral lay, And in thefe tales mankind furvey; With early virtues plant your breaft, The fpecious arts of vice deteft.

Princes, like beauties, from their youth Are ftrangers to the voice of truth. Learn to contemn all praife betimes; For flattery's the nurfe of crimes : Friendship by fweet reproof is shown, (A virtue never near a throne). In courts fuch freedom muft offend, There none prefumes to be a friend. To those of your exalted station Each courtier is a dedication : Must I too flatter like the rest, And turn my morals to a jeft ? The Mufe difdains to fteal from thofe, Who thrive in courts by fulfome profes VOL. IL. D

But shall I hide your real praise, Or tell you what a nation fays ? They in your infant-bofom trace The virtues of your Royal race ; In the fair dawning of your mind Difcern you gen'fous, mild, and kind They fee you grieve to hear diftrefs. And pant already to redrefs. Go on, the height of good attain, Nor let a nation hope in vain-For hence we justly may prefage The virtues of a riper age. True courage shall your bofom fire, And future actions own your fire. Cowards are cruel; but the brave Love mercy, and delight to fave.

A Tyger, roaming for his prey, Sprung on a Trav'ler in the way; The profirate game a Lion fpies, And on the greedy tyrant flies. With mingled roar refounds the wood; Their teeth, their claws diffil with blood's: Till, vanquifn'd by the Lion's ftrength,. The fpotted foe extends his length. The man befought the fhaggy lord, And on his knees for life implor'd. His life the gen'rous hero gave. Together walking to his cave, The Lion thus befooke his gueft. My matchlefs firength! You faw the fight, And muft atteft my pow'r and right. Forc'd to forego their native home, My flarving flaves at diftance roam; Within thefe woods I reign alone, The boundlefs foreft is my own. Bears, wolves, and all the favage brood, Have dy'd the regal den with blood. Thefe carcafes on either hand, Thofe bones that whiten all the land, My former deeds and triumphs tell, Beneath thefe jaws what numbers fell.

True, fays the man, the firength I faw Might well the brutal nation awe : But thall a monarch, brave like you, Place glory in fo falfe a view ? Robbers invade their neighbour's right. Be lov'd: Let juftice bound your might. Mean are ambitious heroes boafts Of wafted lands and flaughter'd hofts. Pirates their power by murders gain, Wife kings by love and mercy reign. To me your clemency hath flown The virtue worthy of a throne. Heav'n gives you power above the reft, Like Heav'n to fuccour the diffreft.

The cafe is plain, the monarch faid, Falfe glory hath my youth milled; For beafts of prey, a fervile train, Have been the flatt'rers of my reign. You reafon well. Yet tell me, friend, and able of Did ever you in courts attend?

The SPANIEL and the CAMELEON.

A Spaniel, bred with all the care That waits upon a fav'rite heir, Ne'er felt correction's tigid hand; Indulg'd to difobey command, In pamper'd eafe his hours were fpent : He never knew what learning meant. Such forward airs, fo pert, fo fmart, Were fore to won his lady's heart : Each little mifchief gain'd him praife. How pretty were his fawning ways!

The wind was fonth, the morning fair, He ventures forth to take the air, He ranges all the meadow round, And rolls upon the fofteft ground : When near him a Cameleon feen, Was fearce diftinguish'd from the green.

Dear emblem of the flatt'ring hoft; What, live with clowns! a genius loft! To cities and the court repair; A fortune cannot fail thee there:

Preferment shall thy talents crown. Believe me, friend ; I know the town-

Sir, fays the fycophant, like you, Of old, politer life I knew : Like you, a courtier born and bred, Kings lean'd their ear to what I faid. My whifper always met fuccefs ; The ladies prais'd me for addrefs. I knew to hit each courtier's paffion, And flatter'd every vice in fathion. But Jove, who hates the liar's ways, At once cut fhort my profp'rous days; And, fentenc'd to retain my nature, Transform'd me to this crawling creature. Doom'd to a life obscure and mean, I wander in the fylvan scene. For Jove the heart alone regards ; He punishes what man rewards. How diff'rent is thy cafe and mine ! With men at leaft you fup and dine ; While I, condemn'd to thinneft fare, Like those I flatter'd, feed on air.

FABLE III.

The MOTHER, the NURSE, and the FAIRY.

G IVE me a fon. The bleffing fent, Were ever parents more content ? How partial are their doating eyes! No child is half fo fair and wife.

D 3

Wak'd to the morning's pleafing care, The Mother rofe, and fought her heir. She faw the Nurfe, like one poffcfs'd, With wringing hands, and fobbing breaft.

Sure fome difafter has befel : Speak, Nurfe, I hope the boy is well.

54

Dear Madam, think not me to blame ; Invifible the Fairy came : Your precious bahe is hence convey'd, And in the place a changeling laid Where are the father's mouth and nofe, The mother's eyes as black as flocs? See here, a flocking aukward creature, That fpeaks a fool in ev'ry feature.

The woman's blind, the Mother cries; I fee wit fparkle in his eyes.

Lord ! Madam, what a fquinting leer! No doubt the Fairy hath been here.

Juft as the fpoke, a pignry fprite Pops through the key-hole, fwift as light; Perch'd on the cradle's top he flands, And thus her folly reprimands.

Whence forung the vain conceited lie, That we the world with fools fupply ? What! give our forightly race away, For the dull helplefs fons of clay! Befides, by partial fondnefs flown, Like you we doat upon our own. Where yet was ever found a mother, Who'd give her boohy for another ? ## FABLE IV.

The EAGLE, and the affembly of ANIMALS.

A<sup>S</sup> Jupiter's all-feeing eye Survey'd the worlds beneath the fky, From this fmall fpeck of earth were fent, Murmurs and founds of difcontent : For ev'ry thing alive complain'd, That he the hardeft life fuftain'd.

Jove calls his Eagle. At the word Before him ftands the royal bird. The bird, obedient, from heav'n's height, Downward directs his rapid flight; Then cited ev'ry living thing, To hear the mandates of his king.

Ungrateful creatures, whence arife. Thefe murmurs which offend the fikies ? Why this diforder ? fay the caufe; For juft are Jove's eternal laws. Let each his difcontent reveal. To yon four dog I firft appeal.

Hard is my lot, the hound replies. On what fleet nerves the greyhound flies! While I, with weary flep, and flow, O'er plains, and vales, and mountains go. The morning fees my chace begun, Nor ends it till the fetting fun.

D 4

When (fays the greyhound) 1 purfue, My game is loft, or caught in view; Beyond my fight the prey's fecure. The hound is flow, but always fure. And had I his fagacious feent, Jove ne'er had heard my difcontent.

56

The lion crav'd the fox's art; The fox, the lion's force and heart: The cock implor'd the pigeon's flight, Whofe wings were rapid, flrong, and light: The pigeon flrength of wing defpis'd, And the cock's matchlefs valour priz'd: The fiftes with'd to graze the plain; The beafts, to fkim beneath the main. Thus, envious of another's flate, Each blam'd the partial hand of Fate.

The bird of heav'n then cry'd aloud, Jove bids difperfe the murm'ring eroud; The god rejects your idle prayers. Would ye, rebellious mutineers, Entirely change your name and nature, And be the very envy'd creature ? What, filent all, and none confent ? Be happy then, and learn content : Nor imitate the refilefs mind, And proud ambition of mankind.

FABLEV.

The WILD-BOAR and the RAM.

A GAINST an elm a fheep was ty'd, The butcher's knife in blood was dy'd : The patient flock, in filent fright, From far beheld the horrid fight. A favage Boar, who near them flood, Thus mock'd to fcorn the fleecy brood.

All cowards fhould be ferv'd like you. See, fee, your murd'rer is in view : With purple hands, and reeking knife, He ftrips the fkin yet warm with life. Your quarter'd fires, your bleeding dams, The dying bleat of harmlefs lambs, Call for revenge. O ftupid race! The heat that wants revenge, is bafe,

I grant, an ancient Ram replies, We bear no terror in our eyes : Yet think us not of foul fo tame, Which no repeated wrongs inflame ; Infenfible of ev'ry ill, Becaufe we want thy tufks to kill. Know, thofe who violence purfue, Give to themfelves the vengeance due ; For in thefe maffacres they find The two chief plagues that wafte mankind. 5.7

Our fkin fupplies the wrangling bar, It wakes their flumb'ring fons to war; And well revenge may reft contented, Since drums and parchment were invented.

FABLE VI.

The MISER and PLUTUS.

THE wind was high, the window fhakes; With fudden flat the Mifer wakes. Along the filent room he flalks; Looks back, and trembles as he walks : Each lock and ev'ry bolt he tries, In every creck and corner pries; Then opes the cheft with treafure flor'd, And flands in rapture o'er his hoard. But now, with fudden qualms poffeft, He wrings his hands, he beats his breaft. By conficience flung, he wildly flares; And thus his guilty foul declares.

Had the deep earth her flores confin'd, This heart had known fweet peace of mind. But virtue's fold. Good gods! what price Can recompenfe the pangs of vice ! O bane of good! feducing cheat ! Can man, weak man, thy power defeat ? Gold banifh'd honour from the mind, And only left the name behind;

Gold fow'd the world with ev'ry ill ; Gold taught the murd'rer's fword to kill : 'Twas gold inftructed coward-hearts, In treach'ry's more pernicious arts. Who can recount the mifchiefs o'er ? Virtue refudes on earth no more !

He fpoke, and figh'd. In angry mood, Plutus, his god, before him ftood. The Mifer trembling, lock'd his cheft : The Vifion frown'd, and thus addreft.

Whence is this vile ungrateful rant ? Each fordid rafcal's daily cant. The fault's in thy rapacious mind. Becaufe my bleffings are abus'd, Muft I be cenfur'd, curs'd, accus'd? Ev'n virtue's felf by knaves is made A cloak to carry on the trade ; And power (when lodg'd in their poffestion) and analysis Grows tyranny, and rank oppreffion. Thus, when the villain crams his cheft, and have double Gold is the canker of the breaft ; 'I'is av'rice, infolence, and pride, wood dand on well And ev'ry thocking vice befide. But when to virtuous hands 'tis given, and and had It bleffes, like the dews of Heaven : Like Heav'n it hears the orphan's cries, in hair but And wipes the tears from widows eyes. Their crimes on gold fhall mifers lay, and the sould be all Who pawn'd their fordid fouls for pay ? Let bravo's then (when blood is fpilt) Upbraid the paffive fword with guilt.

The LION, the FOX, and the GEESE.

A Lion, tir'd with flate-affairs, Quite fick of pomp, and worn with cares, Refolv'd (remote from noife and flrife) In peace to pafs his latter life.

It was proclaim'd ; the day was fet : Behold the gen'ral council met. The Fox was viceroy nam'd. The croud To the new regent humbly bow'd. Wolves, bears, and mighty tygers bend, And ftrive who most shall condefcend. He strait affumes a folemn grace, Collects his wifdom in his face. The croud admire his wit, his fenfe ; Each word hath weight and confequence. The flatt'rer all his art difplays. He who hath pow'r, is fure of praife. A fox ftept forth before the reft, And thus the fervile throng addreft. How vaft his talents, born to rule, And train'd in virtue's honeft fchool ! What clemency his temper fways ! How uncorrupt are all his ways ! Beneath his conduct and command Rapine shall ceafe to waste the land.

FABLE IX.

The BULL and the MASTIFF.

S EEK you to train your fav'rite boy? Each caution, ev'ry care employ; And ere you venture to confide, Let his preceptor's heart be try'd; Weigh well his manners, life, and fcope; On these depends thy future hope. 63

As on a time, in peaceful reign, A Bull enjoy'd the flow'ry plain, A Maftiff pafs'd; inflam'd with ire, His eye-balls flot indignant fire; He foam'd, he rag'd with thirft of blood.

64

Spurning the ground the inonarch flood, And roar'd aloud. Suffiend the fight; In a whole fkin, go, fleep to-night: Or tell me, ere the battle rage, What wrongs provoke there to engage? Is it ambition fires thy breaft, Or avarice, that ne'er can reft? From thefe alone unjuftly fprings The world-deftroying wrath of kings.

The furly maffiff thus returns. Within my bofom glory burns. Like heroes of eternal name, Whom poets fing, I fight for fame. The butcher's fpirit-flirring mind, To daily war my youth inclin'd ; He train'd me to heroic deed ; Taught me to conquer, or to bleed.

Curs'd dog, the bull reply'd, no more I wonder at thy thirft of gore; For thou (beneath a butcher train'd, Whofe hands with cruelty are ftain'd, His daily murders in thy view) Muft, like thy tutor, blood purfue. Take then thy fate. With goring wound, At once he lifts him from the ground; Aloft the fprawling hero flies, Mangled he falls, he howls, and dies. THE

A<sup>S</sup> a young Stag the thicket paft, The branches held his antlers faft; A clown, who faw the captive hung, Acrofs the horns his halter flung.

Now fafely hamper'd in the cord, He bore the prefent to his lord. His lord was pleas'd; as was the clown, When he was tipt with half a crown. The Stag was brought before his wife; The tender lady begg'd his life. How fleek the fkin! how fpeck'd like ermine ! Sure never creature was fo charming !

At firft within the yard confin'd, He flies and hides from all mankind; Now bolder grown, with fix'd amaze And diftant awe prefumes to gaze; Munches the linen on the lines, And on a hood or apron dines : He fleals my little mafter's bread, Follows the fervants to be fed : Nearer and nearer now he flands, To feel the praife of patting hands;

Such is the country maiden's fright, When firft a red-coat is in fight; Behind the door fhe hides her face; Next time at diftance eyes the lace. She now can all his terrors fland, Nor from his fqueeze withdraws her hand. She plays familiar in his arms, And every foldier hath his charms. In vifits too his parts and wit, When jefts grew dull, were fure to hit. Proud with applaufe, he thought his mind In ev'ry courtly art refin'd; Like Orpheus burat with public zeal, To civilize the monkey weal : So watch'd occafion, broke his chain, And fought his native woods again.

The hairy fylvans round him prefs, Aftonifh'd at his firut and drefs. Some praife his ficeve; and others glote Upon his rich embroider'd coat; His dapper periwig continending, With the black tail behind depending; His powder'd back, above, below, Like hoary frofts, or fleecy fnow : But all, with envy and defire, His futt'ring fhoulder-knot admire.

But where he paft, he terror threw; The fong broke fhort, the warblers flew; The thrufhes chatter'd with affright, And nightingales abhort'd his fight : All animals before him ran, To fhun the hateful fight of man.

Whence is this dread of ev'ry creature ? Fly they our figure or our nature?

As thus he walk'd in mufing thought, His ear imperfect accents caught; With cautious flep he nearer drew, By the thick fhade conceal'd from view. High on the branch a Pheafant flood, Around her all her lift'ning brood; Proud of the bleffings of her neft, She thus a mother's care exprefs'd.

The SICK MAN and the ANGEL.

I S there no hope ? the fick man faid. The filent doctor fhook his head; And took his leave, with figns of forrow, Defpairing of his fee to-morrow.

When thus the Man, with gafping breath :: I feel the chilling wound of death. Since I must bid the world adieu, Let me my former life review. I grant, my bargains well were made. But all men over-reach in trade ; 'Tis felf-defence in each profession. Sure felf-defence is no tranfgreffion. The little portion in my hands. By good fecurity on lands, Is well increas'd. If unawares, My justice to myfelf and heirs, Hath let my debtor rot in jail, For want of good fufficient bail; If I by writ, or bond, or deed, Reduc'd a family to need, My will hath made the world amends, My hope on charity depends. When I am number'd with the dead, And all my pious gifts are read, By heav'n and earth 'twill then be known My charities were amply flown.

The PERSIAN, the SUN, and the CLOUD.

I<sup>S</sup> there a bard whom genius fires, Whofe ev'ry thought the God infpires? When Envy reads the nervous lines, She frets, the rails, the raves, the pines; Her hifting fnakes with venom fwell; She calls her venal train from hell : The fervile fiends her nod obey, And all Curl's authors are in pay. Fame calls up calumny and fpite. Thus fhadow owes its birth to light.

With fervent zeal the Persian mov'd, Thus the proud calumny reprov'd.

It was that God, who claims my prayer, Who gave thee birth, and rais'd thee there. When o'er his beams the veil is thrown, Thy fubfiance is but plainer fhown. A paffing gale, a puff of wind Difpelis thy thickeft troops combin'd.

The gale arofe; the vapour toft (The fport of winds) in air was loft; The glorious orb the day refines. Thus Envy breaks, thus Merit thines.

A Fox, in life's extreme decay, Weak, fick, and faint, expiring lay; All appetite hath left his maw, And age difarm'd his mumbling jaw. His num'rous race around him fland To learn their dying fire's command : He rais'd his head with whining moan, And thus was heard the feeble tone.

THE ranging Dog the flubble tries, And fearches ev'ry breeze that flies; The feent grows warm : with cautious fear He creeps, and points the covey near. The men, in filence, far behind, Confeious of game, the net unbind.

A Rake, by ev'ry paffion rul'd, With ev'ry vice his youth had cool'd; Difeafe his tainted blood affails; His fpirits droop, his vigour fails : With fecret ills at home he pines, And, like infirm old-age, declines.

As, twing'd with pain, he penfive fits, And raves, and prays, and fwears by fits; A ghaftly phantom, lean and wan, Before him rofe, and thus began.

My name perhaps hath reach'd your ear; Attend, and be advis'd by Care. Nor love, nor honour, wealth, nor power, Can give the heart a chearful hour, When health is loft. Be timely wife; With health all tafte of pleafure flies.

Thus faid, the phantom difappears. The wary counfel wak'd his fears : He now from all excefs abitains, With phyfick purifies his veins ; And, to procure a fober life, Refolves to venture on a wife. G A

How thall he chafe this hideous gueld? Power may perhaps protect his reft. To pow'r he rofe. Again the fp'rit Befets him morning, noon, and night; Talks of Ambition's tott'ring feat, How Envy perfecutes the great, Of rival hate, of treach'rous friends, And what difgrace his fall attends.

The court he quits, to fly from Care, And feeks the peace of rural air : His groves, his fields amus'd his hours; He prun'd his trees, he rais'd his flowers. Our worth the Grecian fages knew ; They gave our fires the honour due ; They weigh'd the dignity of fowls, And pry'd into the depth of owls. Athens, the feat of learned fame, With gen'ral voice rever'd our name ; On merit title was confern'd, And all ador'd th' Athenian bird.

Right. Athens was the feat of learning, And truly wifdom is differning. Befides, on Pallas' helm we fit, The type and ornament of wit; But now, alas! we're quite neglected, And a pert fparrow's more refpected.

A Sparrow, who was lodg'd befide, O'erhears them footh each other's pride, And thus he nimbly vents his heat.

Who meets a fool, must find conceit. I grant, you were at Athens grac'd, And on Minerva's helm were plac'd : But ev'ry bird that wings the fky, Except an owl, can tell you why. Like you, they take that dreadful form, Bafk in the fun, and fly the florm; With malice hifs, with envy glote, And for convenience change their coat; With new-got lufter rear their head, Though on a dunghill born and bred,

Sudden the god a lion flands; He fhakes his mane, he fpurns the fands; Now a fierce lynx, with fiery glare, A wolf, an afs, a fox, a bear.

Had I ne'er liv'd at court, he ories, Such transformation might furprife; But there, in queft of daily game, Each able courtier afts the fame. Wolves, lions, lynxes, while in place, Their friends and fellows are their chace. They play the bear's and fox's part; Now rob by force, now fteal with art. They fometimes in the fenate bray; Or, chang'd again to beafts of prey, Down from the lion to the ape, Praftife the frauds of ev'ry fhape.

The OWL and the FARMER.

A Nowl of grave deport and mien, Who (like the Turk) was feldom feen, Within a barn had chofe his flation, As fit for prey and contemplation, Upon a beam aloft he fits, And nods, and feems to think, by fits. So have I feen a man of news, Or Poft-boy, or gazette perufe; Smoke, nod, and talk with voice profound, And fix the fate of Europe round. Sheaves pil'd on fheaves hid all the floor. At dawn of morn, to view his flore The farmer came. The hooting gueft His felf-importance thus exprest.

My tulips are my garden's pride. What vaft expence those beds fupply'd!

The Hog by chance one morning roam'd, Where with new ale the veffels foam'd. He munches now the fleaming grains, Now with full fivill the liquor drains. Intoxicating fumes arife; He reels, he rolls his winking eyes; Then flagg'ring through the garden, fcowrs, And treads down painted ranks of flowers. And, left the guilty hear and dread, Shall not the decalogue be read ? If I lafh vice in gen'ral fiftion, Is't I apply, or felf-conviction ? Brutes are my theme. Am I to blame, If men in morals are the fame ? I no man call an ape or afs; 'Tis his own confeince holds the glafs. Thus void of all offence I write : Who claims the fable, knows his right.

A fhepherd's dog, unfkill'd in fports, Pick'd up acquaintance of all forts; Among the reft a fox he knew; By frequent chat their friendfhip grew.

Says Reynard, 'Tis a cruel cafe, That man fhould fligmatize our race. No doubt, among us rogues you find, As among dogs and human kind ; And yet (unknown to me and you) There may be honeft men and true. Thus flander tries, whate'er it can, To put us on the foot with man. Let my own actions recommend ; No prejudice can blind a friend : You know me free from all difguife ; My honour as my life I prize.

By talk like this, from all miltruft The dog was cur'd, and thought him juft.

As on a time the fox held forth Ou confcience, honefty, and worth, Sudden he ftopt; he cock'd his ear; Low dropt his brufhy tail with fear.

The BABOON and the POULTRY.

To a LEVEE-HUNTER.

WE frequently milplace effeem By judging men by what they feem. To birth, wealth, power, we should allow Precedence and our loweff bow. In that is due diffinction shown. Effeem is virtue's right alone.

With partial eye we're apt to fee The man of noble pedigree, We're prepoffefs'd my Lord inherits In fome degree his grandfire's merits ; For thofe we find upon record : But find him nothing but my Lord.

When we with inperficial view Gaze on the rich, we're dazzled too. We know that wealth, well underflood, Hath frequent pow'r of doing good. Then fancy that the thing is done, As if the pow'r and will were one.

Thus oft the cheated croud adore The thriving knaves that keep 'em poor.

The cringing train of pow'r furvey; What creatures are fo low as they ! With what obfequioufnefs they bend ! To what vile actions condefcend! Their rife is on their meannefs built, And flatt'ry is their fmalleft guilt. What homage, rev'rence, adoration, In cv'ry age, in ev'ry nation, Have fycophants to pow'r addrefs'd ! No matter who the pow'r poffefs'd. Let minifters be what they will, You find their levees always fill. Ev'n those who have perplex'd a flate, Whofe actions claim'd contempt and hate. Had wretches to applaud their fchemes, Though more abfurd than madmens dreams. When barb'rous Moloch was invok'd, The blood of infants only fmoak'd! But here (unlefs all hift'ry lies) Whole realms have been a facrifice.

Look through all courts. 'Tis pow'r we find The gen'ral idol of mankind; There worfhipp'd under ev'ry fhape. Alike the lion, fox, and ape, Are follow'd by time-ferving flaves, Rich profitutes and needy knaves.

Be virtue mine; be theirs the bribe. I no man's property invade : Corruption's yet no lawful trade. Nor would it mighty ills produce, Could I fhame brib'ry out of ufe. I know 'twould cramp moft politicians, Were they ty'd down to thefe conditions. 'Twould fint their power, their riches bound, And make their parts feem lefs profound. Were they deny'd their proper tools, How could they lead their knaves and fools ? Were this the cafe, let's take a view, What dreadful mitchiefs would enfue. Though it might aggrandize the state, Could private lux'ry dine on plate ? Kings might indeed their friends reward, But ministers find lefs regard. Informers, fycophants, and fpics, Would not augment the year's fupplies. Perhaps too, take away this prop, An annual job or two might drop. Befides, if penfions were deny'd, Could Avarice fupport its pride ? It might ev'n ministers confound, And yet the flate be fafe and found.

I vent no flander, owe no grudge, Nor of another's conficience judge : At him or him I take no aim, Yet dare againft all vice declaim. Shall I not cenfure breach of truft, Becaufe knaves know themfelves unjuft ? That fleward whofe account is clear, Demands his honour may appear : His actions never frun the light ; He is, and would be prov'd upright.

No honeft tongue an audience found : He worried all the tenants round: For why, he liv'd in conftant fear. Left truth by chance fhould interfere. If any ftranger dar'd intrude. The noify Cur his heels purfu'd. Now fierce with rage, now ftruck with dread, At once he fnarled, bit, and fled. Aloof he bays, with briffling hair, And thus in fecret growls his fear. Who knows but Truth, in this difguife, May frustrate my best guarded lies? Should the (thus mafk'd) admittance find, That very hour my ruin's fign'd.

For now the Squire, unvex'd with noife, An honeft neighbour's chat enjoys. Be free (fays he) your mind impart; I love a friendly open heart. Methinks my tenants fhun my gate. Why fuch a ftranger grown of late ? Pray tell me what offence they find : ' I's plain they're not fo well inclin'd

Turn off your Cur, (the farmer cries), Who feeds your ear with daily lies. His fnarling infolence offends. 'I'is he that keeps you from your friends. H AVE you a friend (look round and fpy) So fond, fo prepoffefs'd as I? Your faults, fo obvious to mankind, My partial eyes could never find. When, by the breath of Fortune blown, Your airy cafiles were o'erthrown; Have I been over prone to blame? Was I e'er known to damp your fpirit, Or twit you with the want of merit?

'Tis not fo ftrange that Fortune's frown, Still perfeveres to keep you down. Look round, and fee what others do. Would you be rich and honeft too ? Have you (like thofe fhe rais'd to place) Been opportunely mean and bafe ? Have you (as times requir'd) refign'd Truth, honour, virtue, peace of mind ? If thefe are foruples, give her o'er;

Write, practife morals, and be poor. The gifts of Fortune truly rate; Then tell me what would mend your flate. If happinefs on wealth were built, Rich rogues might comfort find in guilt.

As grows the mifer's hoarded ftore, His fears, his wants increase the more.

Think, Gay, (what ne'er may be the cafe), Should Fortune take you into grace, Would that your happine's augment? What can fhe give beyond content?

Suppofe yourfelf a wealthy heir, With a vaft annual income clear; In all the affluence you poffers, You might not feel one care the lefs. Might you not then (like others) find, With change of fortune, change of mind? Perhaps, profuse beyond all rule, You might flart out a glaring fool; Your luxury might break all bounds; Plate, table, horfes, flewards, hounds; Might fwell your debts : Then, luft of play No regal income can defray. Sunk is all credit, writs affail, And doom your future life to jail.

Or were you dignified with pow'r, Would that avert one penfive hour ? You might give avarice its fwing, Defraud a nation, blind a king : Then, from the hirelings in your caufe, Though daily fed with falfe applaufe, Could it a real joy impart ? Great guilt knew never joy at heart.

Was ever wretch like this, he cries! Such mifery in fuch difguife ! The change, O Jove, I difavow. Still be my lot the fpade and plough.

He next, confirm'd by fpeculation, Rejects the lawyer's occupation; For he the flatefman feem'd in part, And bore fimilitude of heart. Nor did the foldier's trade inflame flis hopes with thirft of fpoil and fame : The miferies of war he mourn'd; Whole nations into defarts turn'd.

By thefe have laws and rights been brav'd; By thefe was free-born man inflav'd; When battles and invafion ceafe; Why fwarm they in the lands of peace ? Such change (fays he) may I decline; The fcythe and civil arms be mine !

Thus, weighing life in each condition, The clown withdrew his rafh petition.

When thus the god: How mortals err ! If you true happiness prefer, 'Tis to no rank of life confin'd, But dwells in ev'ry honest mind. Be justice then your fole pursuit. Plant virtue, and content's the fruit.

When naval traffic plows the main, Who fhares not in the merchant's gain ? 'Tis that fupports the regal flate, And makes the farmer's heart elate : The num'rous flocks, that clothe the land, 'Can (carce fupply the loom's demand; 'Prolific culture glads the fields, And the bare heath a harveft yields.

Nature expects mankind fhould fhare The duties of the public care. Who's born for floth ? * To fome we find The plough-fhare's annual toil affign'd. Some at the founding anvil glow; Some the fwift-fliding fhuttle throw : Some, fludious of the wind and tide, From pole to pole our commerce guide : Some (taught by industry) impart With hands and feet the works of art : While fome, of genius more refin'd, With head and tongue affift mankind : Each, aiming at one common end, Proves to the whole a needful friend. Thus, born each other's ufeful aid, By turns are obligations paid.

The monarch, when his table's fpread, is to the clown oblig'd for bread; And, when in all his glory dreft, Owes to the loom his royal veft :

To this I humbly must diffent ; Premising, no reflection's meant.

184

Does justice, or the client's fense, Teach lawyers either fide's defence ? The fee gives eloquence its fpirit ; That only is the client's merit. Does art, wit, wildom, or addrefs, Obtain the profitute's carefs ? The guinea (as in other trades) From ev'ry hand alike perfuades. Man, fcripture fays, is prone to evil ; But does that vindicate the devil? Belides, the more mankind are prone. The lefs the devil's parts are flown. Corruption's not of modern date ; It hath been try'd in ev'ry ftate. Great knaves of old their pow'r have fene'd By places, penfions, bribes, difpens'd; By these they glory'd in fuccess. And impudently dar'd opprefs: By these despoticly they fway'd. And flaves extoll'd the hand that paid ; Nor parts nor genius were employ'd, By thefe alone were realms deftroy'd.

Now fee thefe wretches in difgrace, Stript of their treafures, pow'r, and place; View 'em abandon'd and forlorn, Expos'd to juft reproach and fcorn. What now is all your pride, your boaft? Night after night he weighs the cafe, And feels the terrors of difgrace.

By friends (fays he) I'll guard my feat; By those malicious tongues defeat : I'll ftrengthen pow'r by new allies, And all my clam'rous foes defpife.

To make the gen'rous beafts his friends, He cringes, fawns, and condefcends; But thole repuls'd his abject court, And fcorn'd opprefilon to fupport. Friends muft be had. He can't fubfift. But foon, expos'd to public hate, The fav'rite's fall redrefs'd the flate. The Leopard, vindicating right, Had brought his fecret frauds to light. As rats, before the manfion falls, Defert late hofpitable walls, In fhoals the fervile creatures run, To bow before the rifing fun.

One counts your income of the year, How much in ready money clear.

No houfe, fays he, is more compleat ; The garden's elegant and great. How fine the park around it lies ! The timber's of a noble fize. Then count his jewels and his plate. Befides, 'tis no entail'd eftate. If eafh run low, his lands in fee Are or for fale, or mortgage free.

Thus they, before you threw the main, Seem'd to anticipate their gain.

Would you, when thieves are known abroad, Bring forth your treafures in the road ? Would not the fool abet the flealth, Who rafhly thus expos'd his wealth ? Yet this you do, whene'er you play Among the gentlemen of prey.

Could fools to keep their own contrive, On what, on whom could gamefters thrive ? Is it in charity you game, To fare your worthy gang from fhame ? Unlefs you furnith'd daily bread, Which way could idlenefs be fed ? Could thefe profeffors of deceit Within the law no longet cheat, They mult run bolder rifques for prey, And ftrip the trav'ler on the way. Thus in your annual rents they fhare, And 'fcape the noofe from year to year.

Confider, ere you make the bett, That fum might crofs your taylor's debt.

N 2

When you the pilf'ring rattle fhake, Is not your honour too at flake ? Muft you not by mean lies evade To-morrow's duns from ev'ry trade ? By promifes fo often paid, Is yet your taylor's bill defray'd ? Muft you not pitifully fawn, To have your butcher's writ withdrawn ? This muft be done. In debts of play Your honour fuffers no delay : And not this year's and next year's rent The fons of rapine can content,

Look round. The wrecks of play behold, Effates difmember'd, mortgag'd, fold ! Their owners, not to jails confin'd, Show equal poverty of mind. Some, who the fpoil of knaves were made, Too late attempt to learn their trade. Some, for the folly of one hour, Become the dirty tools of pow'r. And, with the mercenary lift, Upon court-charity fubfift.

You'll find at last this maxim true, Fools are the game which knaves purfue.

The foreft (a whole cent'ry's fhade) Muft be one wafteful ruin made. No mercy's fhown to age or kind; The gen'ral maffacre is fign'd. The park too fhares the dreadful fate, For duns grow louder at the gate.

Stern clowns, obedient to the 'Squire, (What will not barb'rous hands for hire !) With brawny arms repeat the flroke. Fall'n are the elm and rev'rend oak. Through the long wood loud axes found, And echo groans with ev'ry wound.

To fee the defolation fpread, Pan drops a tear, and hangs his head. His bofom now with fury burns; Beneath his hoof the dice he fpurns. Cards too, in peevifi paffion torn, The fport of whirling winds are born.

To fnails invet'rate hate I bear, Who fpoil the verdure of the year : The caterpillar I deteft, The blooming fpring's voracious pelt : The locust too, whose rav'nous band Spreads fudden famine o'er the land. But what are thefe ? The dice's throw At once hath laid a foreft low. The cards are dealt, the bett is made, And the wide park hath loft its thade. Thus is my kingdom's pride defac'd, And all its ancient glories wafte. All this (he cries) is Fortune's doing : 'Tis thus fhe meditates my ruin. By Fortune, that falfe, fickle jade, More havock in one hour is made, Than all the hungry infect-race, Combin'd, can in an age deface. There may (if computation's juft) One now and then my conduct truft : I blame the fool; for what can I, When ninety-nine my pow'r defy ? These trust alone their fingers ends, And not one flake on me depends. Whene'er the gaming-board is fet, Two classes of mankind are met : But if we count the greedy race, The knaves fill up the greater fpace. 'Tis a grofs error, held in fchools, That Fortune always favours fools. In play it never bears difpute ; That doctrine thefe fell'd oaks confute. Then why to me fuch rancour flow ? ### PLUTUS, CUPID, and TIME.

F all the burt hens man must bear, Time feems most galling and fevere : Beneath this grievous load opprefs'd, We daily meet fome friend diffrefs'd.

What can one do ? I rofe at nine. 'Tis full fix hours before we dine : Six hours ! no carthly thing to do ! Would I had doz'd in bed till two.

A pamphlet is before him fpread, And almost half a page is read; Tir'd with the fludy of the day, The flutt'ring fheets are toft away. He opes his fnuff-box, hums an air, Then yawns and firetches in his chair.

Not twenty, by the minute-hand ! Good gods! fays he, my watch muft ftand! How muddling 'tis on books to pore ! I thought I'd read an hour or more. One can't contrive to rife too late.

To make the minutes fafter run, the shall I would Then too his tirefome felf to fhun, To the next cofficehouse he speeds, the monoton only Takes up the news, fome feraps he reads, and with the tude of NA 1 Log eno accound W

Saunt'ring, from chair to chair he trails; Now drinks his tea, now bites his nails. He fpies a partner of his woe; By chat afflictions lighter grow; Each other's grievances they fhare, And thus their dreadful hours compare.

Says Tom, fince all men muft confefs That time lies heavy more or lefs; Why fhould it be fo hard to get, Till two, a party at Piquet ? Play might relieve the lagging morn : By cards long wintry nights are borne. Does not Quadrille amufe the fair, Night after night, throughout the year ? Vapours and fpleen forgot, at play They cheat uncounted hours away.

My cafe, fays Will, then must be hard, By want of skill from play debarr'd. "Courtiers kill time by various ways; Dependence wears out half their days. How happy thefe, whofe time ne'er flands! Attendance takes it off their hands. Were it not for this curfed flow'r, The park had whil'd away an hour. At court, without or place or view, I daily lofe an hour or two. It fully anfwers my defign, When I have pick'd up friends to dine. The tavern makes our burthen light ; Wine puts our time and care to flight. At fix (hard cafe!) they call to pay. Where can one go ? I hate the play.

From fix till ten ! Unlefs I fleep, One cannot fpend the hours fo cheap. The comedy's no fooner done, But fome affembly is begun. Loit'ring from room to room I flray; Converfe, but nothing hear or fay : Quite tir'd, from fair to fair I roam. So foon ! I dread the thoughts of home. From thence, to quicken flow-pac'd night, Again my tavern-friends invite : Here too our early mornings pafs, Till droufy fleep retards the glafs.

Thus they their wretched life bemoan, And make each other's cafe their own.

Confider, friends, no hour rolls on, But fomething of your grief is gone. Were you to fchemes of bus'nefs bred, Did you the paths of learning tread, You'n hours, your days would fly too faft; You'd then regret the minute paft. Time's fugitive and light as wind; 'Tis indolence that elogs your mind : That load from off your fpirits fhake; You'll own, and grieve for your miftake. A while your thoughtlefs fpleen fufpend, Then read; and (if you can) attend.

Let kings (fays he) let coblers tell, Whofe gifts among mankind excel. Confider courts : What draws their train ? Think you 'tis loyalty-or gains? That beauty too, (like other wares), Its price, as well as confcience, bears, Then marriage (as of late profeft) Is but a moncy-job at best. Confent, compliance may be fold : But love's beyond the price of gold. Smugglers there are, who, by retail, Expose what they call love to fale. Such bargains are an arrant cheat : You purchase flatt'ry and deceit. Those who true love have ever try'd, (The common cares of life fupply'd), No wants endure, no wifhes make, But ev'ry real joy partake. All comfort on themfelves depends ; They want nor pow'r, nor wealth, nor friends, Love then hath ev'ry blefs in ftore : 'Tis friendship, and 'tis fomething more. Each other ev'ry with they give. Not to know love, is not to live.

Or love, or money, (Time reply'd), Were men the queftion to decide, Would bear the prize : On both intent, My boon's neglected, or mif-fpent. 'Tis I who meafure vital fpace, And deal out years to human race. Though little priz'd, and feldom fought, Without me, love and gold are nought. How does the mifer time employ ? For time mifuled they pine and walte, And love's fweet pleafures never tafte. Those who direct their time aright, If love or wealth their hopes excite, In each purfuit fit hours employ'd, And both by time have been enjoy'd. How heedlefs then are mortals grown !
